

Consolidation Of City, County Government Services Urged

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A long awaited study on the desirability of consolidating city and county governmental services recommends such a merger — but points out that the time is not ripe for massive consolidation.

Informed sources told The Star that the report, undertaken by a San Francisco based planning firm, concludes that consolidation of city and county services is "feasible and desirable and we recommend it."

However, the consultants caution that neither the city nor the county are ready for complete consolidation of services at this time.

The one-inch thick report by Arthur D. Little, Inc., was undertaken jointly by the Lincoln Foundation, the city and county. The study officially will be released at a Wednesday noon luncheon at the Lincoln Center Building.

In the report, the consultants state that such a complete city-county consolidation would be feasible within a decade.

The existing "disparity of administrative sophistication and responsiveness of the two levels of government" would preclude a successful reorganization at this time, the report states.

The consultants explain that the city is ruled under a strong mayor-council form of government with department heads directly responsible to the administration.

However, the county is governed by a number of elected officials.

If total consolidation "were to be seriously advocated today," the result would be an "unwieldy, unresponsive and disjointed organizational structure," the consultants contend.

Additionally, such an immediate merger would result in an "almost complete takeover by the city."

In the interim, the consultants urge that county government immediately be strengthened and that the city and county continue to develop "linkages" between them in common areas.

And to lay the groundwork for the creation of such a merged "municipality," the report recommends the formation of a County-City Implementation Commission.

Membership on the commission would include the County Board chairman, the mayor, a City Council member, the county attorney and a lay person.

Among the commission's duties would be to oversee the establishment of task forces to investigate mergers in the following areas: police, fire, public works, budget, personnel and purchasing.

The lengthy report was presented to local officials and Lincoln Foundation representatives at a closed session Tuesday.

Commenting on the report, County Board Chairman Robert Colin told The Star that it is a "comprehensive and good study."

He said he felt it would "open up a lot of people's eyes and bring out many things that the average citizen hasn't realized."

Councilman Steve Cook said the study "offers good food for thought. If we implement even half of these recommendations — it would be an advantage to both the city and county."

Cook commented that the report reinforces the "climate of cooperation" now experienced between city and county officials.

"A lot of people have been talking consolidation for a long time," he said, adding that the study puts "many proposals in the proper perspective."

Council chairwoman Helen Boosalis and councilman Dick Baker said they would withhold comments on the report's recommendations until they had a chance to further study the document, further study the document.

Estimated cost of the report is set at $45,000 with $15,000 coming from the Lincoln Foundation — the organization which originally proposed the study one year ago.

The city and county are picking up the remaining share through two $15,000 grants from the U.S. Civil Service Commission and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Nixon Admits Aiding Coverup

Salt Creek Basin... Water Pollution Sources Listed

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Three governmental units have jointly drafted a plan identifying all water pollution sources in the Salt Creek Basin and establishing a series of priorities needed to bring the basin's water quality within state and federal standards.

The comprehensive series of recommendations drawn up by the State Natural Resources Commission, the City of Lincoln and the Lower Platte South Natural Resource District will be aired 8 p.m., Wednesday, in the fifth floor conference room of the Lincoln Center.

Mrs. Sue Hoppel, a sanitary engineer for the commission, said the plan is needed to maintain the basin's communities' eligibility for federal waste treatment funds.

The plan which took two years to prepare acknowledged that steps are being taken to curb water pollution discharges at many locations, but it said overall the Salt Creek Basin remains in "critical condition."

Phosphates, nitrates and salt are increasing in concentration in the basin's water, the plan said, while improved waste treatment practices have reduced the biochemical oxygen demand (BOD), a measure of strength of the polluting material.

Coliform bacteria concentrations are decreasing, but the study said levels still remain "extremely high."

Of 25 Lincoln industries identified as pollution sources, only five have minimal treatment, such as aeration, recirculation or settling ponds. They are the Bruning Co., Burlington Northern Roundhouse, Dorsey Labs, Goodyear Tire and Rubber and Northwestern Metal Co.

Those which were reported to discharge untreated water are American Stores, Archer Daniels Midland, Beatrice Foods, Bumper and Auto Plating Co., Burlington Northern stockyards and truck wash, Cushman Motors, Fairmont Foods, Gooch Foods, House of Bauer, Journal-Star Co., Lincoln Steel Corp., Mapes Industries, Nebraska Penal Complex, Norden Lab, Ovaltine Foods, Roberts Dairy, Russell Stover, State Fair Grounds and University of Nebraska power plant.

The plan recommends that — a $7 million secondary treatment plant be built at the Stevens Creek location — by Lincoln — during the 1973-75 biennium — — Waverly constructs its own $584,000 treatment plant.

— the State Men's Reformatory and the Burlington Roundhouse be connected to Lincoln's sanitary sewer system.

— the State Fair grounds, the University of Nebraska power plant, Mapes Industries and the Burlington stockyards provide appropriate pretreatment of wastes before connecting to Lincoln's system.

— Bumper and Auto Plating Co. provide its own complete metal removal treatment for its plating waste.

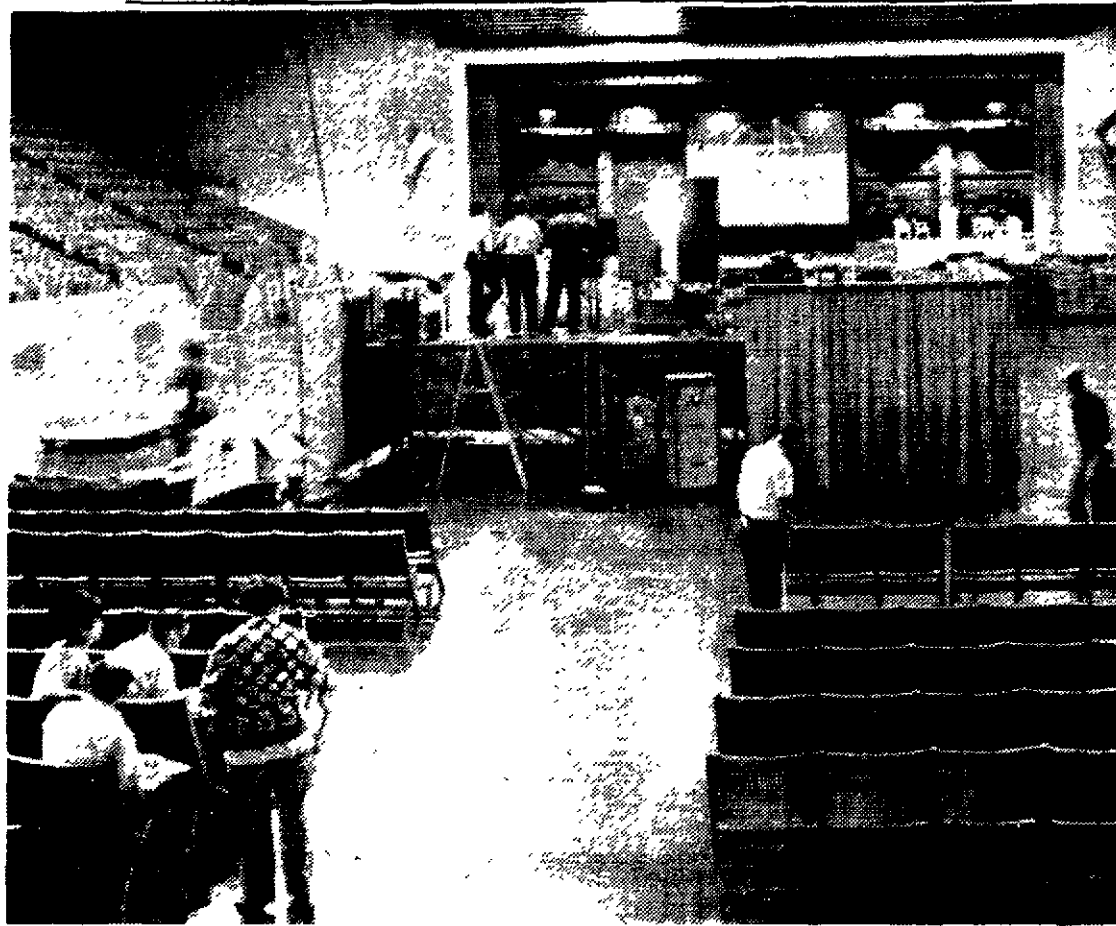

— Dorsey Laboratories, Hy-Gain Electronics and Addressograph-Multigraph provide their own facilities for the immediate future with the future option of connecting into the Stevens Creek plant.

— Nickerson Farms provide its own treatment facilities or hook into the Waverly plant.

— The Bruning Co., the Hallam Power Plant and Greenwood Interchange waste treatment facilities should receive discharge permits after assurances of proper treatment.

— 11 communities (Greenwood, Ceresco, Hickman, Hallam, Davey, Denton, Malcolm, Martell, Cheney, Emerald and Walton) need new or expanded waste treatment systems.

— the unincorporated areas of Martell, Cheney, Emerald and Walton should install collection and treatment systems as soon as possible. The plan added that treatment is particularly needed for the unincorporated area of Emerald which is dumping raw sewage into the Middle Creek.

AUDITORIUM... with 30-foot screen readied for Baptists.

Pershing Being Prepared For Up To 5,000 Baptists

The lone mimeograph machine in Pershing Auditorium was still churning out pages of printed material Tuesday afternoon for use by the 4,000 to 5,000 delegates and visitors expected to attend the first biennial meeting of the American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A.

On the floor of the auditorium itself, where the crowd will gather for the first time Wednesday night, technicians were adjusting the television cameras that will project a huge color picture of events on the stage back to a 30-foot screen on the stage.

In the basement of the auditorium, exhibition booths were being readied and in the center of the room where crate after crate was being unpacked as the Judson Book Store took shape.

The preparations were only the windup of efforts that began as early as 1969, when representatives of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce began trying to sell the American Baptists on locating the meeting in Lincoln.

Walter Yetter of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce said that in talking to leaders of the American Baptists he emphasized the "obvious benefits" of Lincoln's central location, its reasonable costs, its concentrated downtown and its safety.

However, he acknowledged, the leaders had some misgivings, like "Where are we (5,000 of us) going to stay?" and "How can we get to and from the auditorium?"

Those questions were answered in part by a plan in which an estimated 2,500 of the delegates will stay in University of Nebraska residence halls and the rest will stay in private accommodations.

A shuttle bus system, using leased "maxi-vans," was set up between the residence halls and Pershing Auditorium.

Local leaders, the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce and a local arrangements committee headed by James Ekstrand have been working on preparations for more than a year.

The biennial convention is the first since the American Baptists of the U.S.A. adopted a reorganization plan a year ago. It is the 66th meeting of the denomination, which has 15 million members in about 6,200 churches in 48 states and Puerto Rico.

The theme of the convention is "Therefore, Choose Life," chosen to accentuate the personal, group and institutional elements in the American Baptist emphasis on modern day evangelism.

The convention, which ends at noon Sunday, officially gets underway Wednesday evening. Activities are scheduled at the Radisson-Cornhusker, the University of Nebraska Student Union, UNL residence halls and Lincoln Churches. All general assembly sessions will be held at Pershing.

One of the speakers brought to Lincoln in connection with the convention is Ms. Margaret (Maggie) Kuhn, leader of the Gray Panthers, a group which aims to improve the lot of older people. Ms. Kuhn is scheduled to speak at noon Wednesday at St. Paul's United Methodist Church at 12th and M.

Another is well-known speaker Senator Mark O. Hatfield (R-Ore.), scheduled to speak Friday at Pershing Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Says He Ignored Warning Signals

...President Will Not Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Tuesday he will not resign because of the Watergate scandal, but admitted that he had ignored warning signals of a wide-ranging coverup.

He also said that he unwittingly helped coverup efforts. Nixon warned that some present investigations threaten to uncover sensitive national security information that isn't related to the scandal, including still secret details of a scuttled plan to gather intelligence through burglaries.

"I will not abandon my responsibilities," he said. "I will continue to do the job I was elected to do."

He acknowledged that there now appears to have been a wide-ranging coverup of high-level involvement in the wiretapping affair.

"With hindsight, it is apparent that I should have been more heed to the warning signals I received along the way about a Watergate coverup," he said.

Nixon said he was not involved in or aware of the Watergate operation or the coverup.

A spokesman said Nixon's statement was prompted in part by a desire to maintain the secrecy of classified documents involving a decision the President made in July, 1970.

Nixon said the decision covered intelligence operations that would have involved "breaking and entering, in effect" in the name of national security. That plan never was implemented.

Nixon said it is now clear that illegal and unethical activities took place during last year's presidential campaign.

"None of these took place with my specific approval or knowledge," he said.

"To the extent that I may in any way contributed to the climate in which they took place, I did not intend to, to the extent that I failed to prevent them, I should have been more vigilant."

Nixon acknowledged giving orders on at least two occasions that later helped coverup efforts.

Early in the Watergate investigation, he said, he thought mistakenly that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved. He ordered his two top aides, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, to make certain that the Watergate investigation not be allowed to uncover secret CIA activities or the activities of the White House "plumbers" group that had included Watergate conspirators, E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy. Haldeman then allegedly invoked

Nixon's authority in an attempt to keep the FBI from uncovering a financial connection between the Watergate wiretapping and the Nixon re-election campaign.

More recently, on April 18, Nixon said he gave orders to the Justice Department that its investigation into the Watergate scandal should "stay out of national security matters." For a few days this order blocked disclosure of the 1971 burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by White House agents, including Hunt and Liddy.

Nixon said he hadn't been aware of that burglary and hadn't authorized it. However, Elliot L. Richardson, his nominee to be attorney general, told the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday that Nixon was made aware of the Ellsberg case burglary in late March.

In two statements issued at the White House, Nixon specifically denied that he knew of the Watergate wiretapping in advance, that he offered executive clemency to defendants in the case or that he knew until recently that his personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, was providing the defendants with funds.

He also denied that he attempted to implicate the Central Intelligence Agency in the scandal, that he knew until recently of the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist or that he authorized or encouraged subordinates to engage in illegal or improper campaign tactics.

But he said it now seems "there were apparently wide-ranging efforts to limit the investigation or to conceal the possible involvement of members of the administration and the campaign committee."

Acting White House counsel Leonard Garment told newsmen one purpose for the President's statement was to bar disclosure of classified documents removed from the White House and turned over to court officials by fired presidential counsel John W. Dean III.

Nixon said the Dean documents contain a plan, never put into effect, to use breaking and entering to gain national security information.

The President said these documents are "extremely sensitive. They include—and are based upon—assessments of certain foreign intelligence capabilities and procedures, which of course must remain secret."

Caulfield Relayed Offers Of Clemency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide John C. Caulfield swore Tuesday he relayed offers of executive clemency to Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr., but doesn't know whether President Nixon "personally had endorsed this offer."

Caulfield said he was given the assignment to contact McCord by John W. Dean III, who was the White House counsel at the time. He said he asked "Do you want me to tell him it comes from the President?"

"He said words to the effect, 'No, don't do that, say that it comes from way up at the top.'"

McCord, who finished two days of questioning Tuesday, had said when he received the offers from Caulfield during his trial in January, he assumed they came from the President—the only one who can grant executive clemency.

Caulfield said "I specifically never spoke to the President of the United States and have no knowledge of my own as to whether he personally had endorsed this offer or indeed whether anyone had ever discussed it with him."

McCord said he had been told by Caulfield that the President knew of the clemency offer, would be told his response and that he could expect a personal telephone call from Nixon after their meeting.

Caulfield's statement differed from McCord's in two major respects.

McCord had testified Caulfield told him the President was aware of the executive clemency offer and would receive a report about it

Caulfield said he had no knowledge that the President knew the offer was being made.

In another difference in the testimony, McCord had said he placed calls to two embassies in an effort to have the government disclose that his conversations were overheard on wiretaps. He identified the embassies as those of Chile and Israel. He said he knew such evidence would not result in having his case dismissed, but would test the truthfulness of the government which was saying there were no such taps.

But Caulfield testified McCord told him the scheme was a way to save the White House embarrassment over Watergate. He related the plan.

"When the U.S. attorney was told that at least two of Mr. McCord's conversations had been intercepted on national security wiretaps, he would be forced to dismiss the case rather than reveal that the two embassies in question were the subjects of national security wiretaps."

"Mr. McCord was quite adamant in saying he was sure the government could secure his immediate release if they wanted to help him, and that other than the publicity incumbent upon the government being forced to dismiss the case against him, that such an approach would save the administration real embarrassment."

Caulfield said "I viewed my role simply as one of a messenger," and added he actively resisted the role.

McCord had said earlier he was so angered by "a ruthless attempt" by the White House to blame the CIA for the Watergate burglary that he sent a letter promising

Every tree in the forest will fall. It will be a scorched desert.

Caulfield acknowledged receiving the letter.

He said he took it to Dean at the White House and soon after received another message from Dean to McCord.

"He said the message consisted of three things."

"A year is a long time, your wife and family will be taken care of, you will be rehabilitated with employment when this is all over."

McCord had testified about the same offers in his first day before the special Senate committee on Thursday.

"I immediately realized I was being asked to do a very dangerous thing," said Caulfield, a former New York City policeman who won a number of honors for his work.

"I said to Mr. Dean that I did not think it was wise to send me on such a mission since Mr. McCord knew, as many others did, that I had worked closely with Mr. Dean and Mr. Ehrlichman at the White House and therefore it might be quickly guessed that any messages I was conveying were probably from one of the two."

Caulfield worked at the White House until March 1972 as liaison with various law enforcement agency then went to work at the Treasury Department and became assistant director for criminal enforcement for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. He is now on leave.

April Prices Up Sharply,
But Rate of Climb Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices advanced sharply again in April, pushing the cost of living up seven-tenths of one per cent, the government said Tuesday. Big boosts were reported in the cost of food, clothing, autos and gasoline.

April's increase in the Consumer Price Index was two-tenths of one per cent less than March's 22-year record high of nine-tenths of one per cent.

It marked the first time in five months that the rate of increase in the cost of living has declined.

This prompted President Nixon's chief economic adviser, Herbert Stein, to say it "suggests that the wave of inflation which swept over the country in the winter is receding."

But AFL-CIO President George Meany said the report "adds up to more bad news for the American people."

"I am sure the administration will find a way of saying that the April rise in living costs is 'good news,' because 'it did not continue the sharp acceleration of February and March,'" said Meany. He added that workers' buying power in April was less than a year ago.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said that over the past three months consumer prices rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 9.2 per cent, nearly four times the administration's goal of bringing inflation under control by year's end.

The price report followed figures from the Commerce Department last week showing first-quarter corporate profits rising to near-record levels since 1967.

"Ever since we made the forecast it has been looking more and more conservative," he added.

"We will have to expect a continued decline in output as our present mines become worked out, but as production drops I foresee the price of gold rising faster."

Rising prices have already encouraged us to do more prospecting and to exploit more of our lower grade deposits," Goode said.

"All our gold mining companies are busy assessing the possibilities of returning to so-called 'worked-out' areas, of opening up new adjacent areas or of prospecting other gold leaders above or below the present ore bodies."

Another possibility is the milling of stockpiled ore at the mines on Sundays, a move that might increase output on some properties by about 10 per cent without much additional investment.

The world supply of the metal was some 1,200 tons last year, of which South Africa produced about 700 tons. Russia, 250 tons and the rest of the world 250 tons. Canada and the United States trailed Russian production. Ghana, Japan, Australia, Philippines and Rhodesia follow as significant producers.

World News

the administration lifted Phase 2 mandatory price controls in January.

April's cost of living increase put the Consumer Price Index for the month at 130.7, which means it cost $13.07 to buy a cross-section of goods and services that cost $10 in 1967. This was 5.1 per cent higher than a year ago.

The average worker's weekly pay for April rose 11 cents to $141.72. But his buying power, meaning after-tax pay reduced by inflation, was five-tenths of one per cent below last April—the first over-the-year decline in real spendable earnings in more than two years, the bureau said.

Food prices, including meals bought in restaurants, rose 1.4 per cent in April on a seasonally adjusted basis, following near-record jumps of 2.4 per cent in March and 1.9 per cent in February.

Grocery store prices were up 1.3 per cent adjusted and 1.6 per cent unadjusted, with meats, poultry and fish up 1.8 per cent, cereals and baker products up 1 per cent, and fruits and vegetables 3.7 per cent.

The bureau said food store price increases since April 1972 were the highest ever recorded in any one-year period, rising 13.3 per cent. Meat, fish and poultry rose 23.4 per cent over the year while fruits and vegetables jumped 16.1 per cent.

Prices for items other than food advanced seven-tenths of one per cent in April. The cost of services, including rent, transportation and medical care, rose three-tenths of one per cent.

"Higher prices for apparel, used cars, gasoline and home maintenance and repair commodities contributed significantly to the rise in the non-food commodity index," the bureau said.

Also up were prices for furniture, bicycles, tobacco, newspapers and magazines. New car prices, instead of declining as usual in April, went up.

Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, referred to April's rise in food prices as the smallest monthly increase this year and said it is "expected to be the first step in the transition toward much smaller food price increases later this year." He said much of the increase probably occurred before the administration imposed meat ceilings March 29.

He called the decline in the inflation rate welcome, but said "further progress is essential," and urged "full compliance with Phase 3 regulations."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said April's figures were fresh evidence of Phase 3's failure.

Similar considerations also apply in South Africa, which also sells gold to pay for imports. During 1970-1971 this country peddled more gold than it produced. Last year, when there was a balance of payments surplus, some of the output was withheld from the free market. This helped nudge prices up on the European markets, where most trading goes on.

South Africa has mined gold for 90 years and the metal now accounts for some 50 per cent of the country's total exports.

30-Foot Trees
Served As Sail
For New Island

GREENE, Maine (AP) — Residents along a stretch of Sababus Pond beach are wondering what to do with a new island that suddenly confronted them.

Gales and torrential rains ripped out a 50-by-100-foot section of bog at the head of the lake and carried it more than a mile before it came to rest on the beach.

The bog was covered with shrubs, moss and 30-40 foot trees, which served as a sort of sail.

Witnesses said birds perching on the branches went along for the ride.

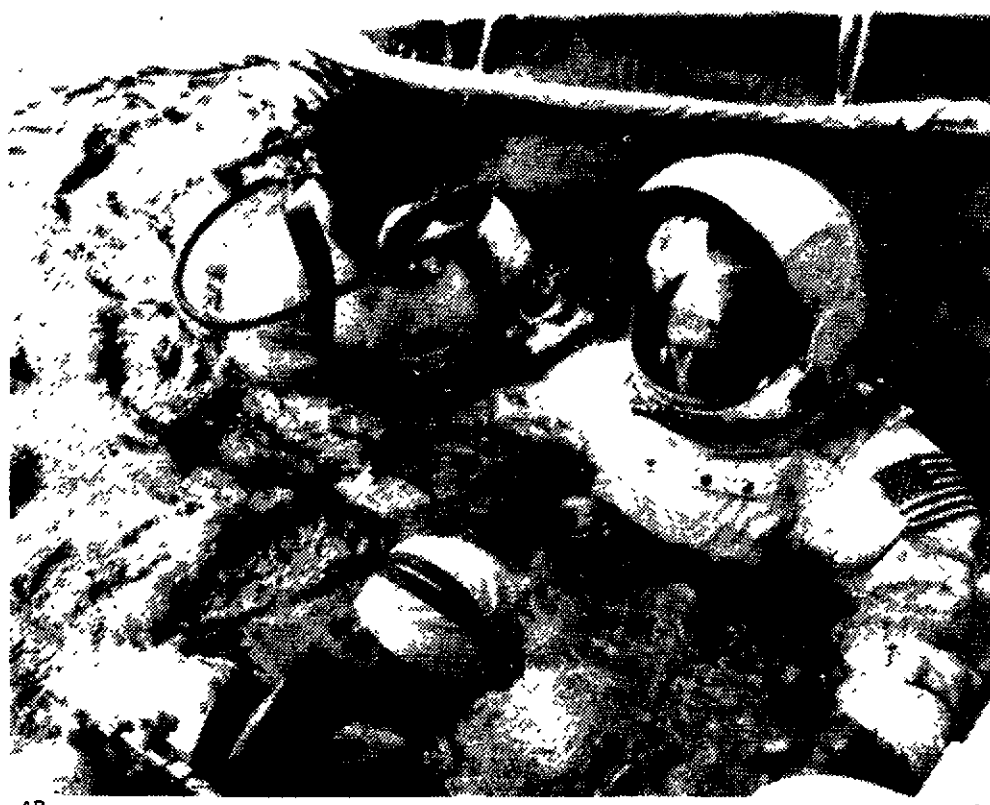

Pony Rustled
In Back Seat
Of Foreign Car

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Police are looking for a thief who rustled a pony from the Roanoke livestock market and made off with the animal wedged in the back seat of his small car.

Victor Turner of Bedford, who owned the 24-inch-tall, speckled pony, said he valued it at $200. Officers said a witness told them he saw the "rustler" pick up the pony, load it into the rear seat of a foreign-made car and drive away.

Bank's Boo-Boo

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — A vacationing New Zealand couple exchanging Japanese yen at a bank got the equivalent of $104,000 in Fiji dollars instead of the $104 they had coming. They carried the loot to their hotel in a shopping bag and, shortly thereafter, an embarrassed bank minion knocked on the door.

Astronauts Test
New Procedures

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts conducted a final rehearsal Tuesday of the repair job which must work if America's Skylab is to be saved. Workers meanwhile prepared for countdown toward a Friday launch of the first space salvage mission.

Working underwater in a tank at the Marshall Space Flight Center near Huntsville, Ala., Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr. and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin practiced erecting a sun shield designed to cool off the overheated space station.

The third Skylab 1 crewman, Paul J. Weitz, planned an underwater rehearsal of a possible space-walking attempt to unjam and deploy a solar power panel.

Full-scale mockups of the Skylab space station and the astronauts' Apollo ship are submerged in the huge tank, where the astronauts get sensations similar to working in weightlessness.

The spacemen fly to Cape Kennedy on Tuesday night. Workers there were preparing to start at 5:30 a.m. EDT Thursday the countdown toward launch of the astronauts at 9 a.m. Friday.

If all goes as planned, Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz will be drilled into orbit aboard an Apollo command module stuffed with tools and equipment designed to rescue the crippled $294 million Skylab from failure.

The Skylab deputy program director, John H. Disher, said on Tuesday that the astronauts will carry hardware for two, and perhaps three, alternate methods of shading the sun-heated orbiting laboratory.

Engineers at the far-flung nerve centers of the nation's space technology have been working feverishly to design, build and test sun shade equipment. Disher said at least three models will arrive at Cape Kennedy by Wednesday afternoon.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

If the Lancaster County Board of Equalization, composed of county commissioners, believes it has disposed of its tax assessment matters with its failure to act on the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. request for a reduction of its personal tax assessment, it has quite another thought coming.

The three commissioners split in deciding the LT & T matter, two of them voting against any change on the basis that the issue will be decided in the courts and a third, Jan Gauger, not voting. It has been speculated that Mrs. Gauger declined to vote due to lack of sufficient knowledge about the situation.

We believe it is time for the county commissioners to become knowledgeable about the personal and real property assessment situation in this county. We are without any confidence that the assessment situation is what it ought to be.

Indications, in fact, have consistently been to the contrary and developments associated with the LT & T case add more fuel to the fire. It is a known fact that County Assessor Fritz Meyer adjusts property values on the basis of sales.

That is fine as far as it goes but it doesn't go far enough. It results in assessment changes for those properties that are sold but no changes for those properties that remain under the same ownership.

Thus, if you sell your home, the new owner will likely have an increase in taxes. If you just keep the home you have, your assessment is not likely to change. That means that some homes, those that are sold, are brought up to date in their assessment while others are left behind.

Thus, two identical homes may have as much as a 50% difference in their assessment for tax purposes. Meyer has said that there is nothing he can do about this since he lacks sufficient help in the office.

If he is right, then the county board ought to provide him the help and this shouldn't be an excessively expensive thing. Informed sources have said that two people working full time could keep the county's property tax assessments fully in line with the law.

This certainly is preferred to another expert reappraisal. The reappraisals cost hundreds of thousands of dollars and begin to become outdated the minute they are finished. They should serve as a point of beginning from which daily updating is done by personnel in the assessor's office.

Another area of concern on the part of commissioners ought to be the matter of property sale prices as reflected in revenue stamps that accompany transfers of deeds.

Judging from remarks of Meyer and Register of Deeds Kenneth Ferguson, the revenue stamps may or may not reflect the true cost or price of a property. This is a sad state of affairs and one of which the county cannot simply wash its hands.

By law, the stamps are supposed to reflect the exact price of a real estate purchase, not an inflated or deflated price for some ulterior motive by the buyer or seller. It is up to the county to enforce the law, as well as a responsibility of the individual to abide by the law.

Something must be wrong some place when Lancaster County apparently failed to report any lot sales in the county for 1971 and 1972 and when the price of real estate sales showed a decline from 1971 to 1972. Even the least-informed individual knows that property values or prices went up that year, not down.

It is time for the county board to stop sitting on its hands and do something about the assessment mess that appears to exist here.

Buzz Off And Buckle Belt On

NEW YORK—Last year we bought one of those new cars that buzzes chastisingly if you don't fasten your seat belt.

At first I talked back to it. "Okay, okay," I'd say on good days. "Aw, shaddup!" was my advice on rainy ones.

"Sure, it makes some people mad," says Charles H. Pulley, president of the American Safety Belt Council (ASBC), "but they'll get over it, just as you have, and will acquire the seat belt habit. A lot of studies now show that in cars with buzzer warning systems, seat belt usage has gone up 50 per cent."

It's odd that Americans fight the use of seat belts and shoulder harness even though they are aware of the life and limb-saving value of the devices. In 1972, there were 56,300 people killed and nearly four million injured in car accidents — a figure that could be almost cut in half if the victims had been wearing seat belts. Yet, with the "it can't happen to me" attitude of the typical auto-occupant, fewer than 20% of our motorists use the belts that they have paid for in their cars.

As for shoulder harnesses, which are the chief deterrent to face and head and neck injuries, they're used by fewer than 3% of the people who have them.

They will be mandatory in all new American cars beginning in 1974. In '74 models, the seat belt and harness will be an interlocked single unit, which must be fastened or the ignition cannot be turned on.

In 1976, the controversial "air bags" will be required in new cars, which will up the purchase price by about $300 (the present buzzer-warning system adds roughly $35 to a car's price; next year's ignition-lock device will up the price about $50).

Until these innovations become a reality, ASBC is pushing states to pass laws requiring drivers and passengers to wear whatever equipment is available in their cars. "That means 90% of the American public would have to wear seat belts. People who still drive 1930 Fords would be exempted, of course."

Pulley points to the safety record of Australia, the only country which has a law mandating the use of safety belts. "Nobody is more independent than the Australians but, when faced with a $20 fine for non-compliance, they quickly adjusted to the seat belt law. After it became effective, a hospital in Victoria reported these statistics: The year before the law was enacted (1970) 1,800 accident victims were admitted to emergency, with 600 seriously injured; in 1972, another 1,800 people were admitted to emergency, but only 250 had to be detained in beds. And they no longer had to keep the plastic surgeon on constant duty."

As for the fatality rate, 17% of the accident victims died before the seat belt law. Today, the figure is 3%.

Pressure Behind Grain Sale

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has confirmed that Assistant Secretary Carroll Brunthaver, a top Nixon administration authority on trade and farm policy, is in Moscow this week for talks with Soviet leaders. A Department spokesman said that Brunthaver's mission "is part of ongoing economic discussions we have been having for some time with the Soviet Union" and that "one may speculate" whether the current talks might involve further U.S. sales of grain or possibly new credit arrangements with Moscow.

The Soviet Union got much the better part of the massive grain and wheat deal struck last year, and with that in mind, Americans can't be blamed for being apprehensive about any new deal that may be in the offing.

The Des Moines Register reported this past weekend that pressure from the White House to complete a grain deal with the Soviet Union before the 1972 election — as a means of improving the administration's image in the then-disgraced farm belt — was a major factor in the decision to subsidize the sale to Russia with American tax money. An administration source told the newspaper that it was common knowledge among U.S. negotiators working on the wheat sale that President Nixon wanted a deal to be consummated quickly and that therefore he wanted "reasonable concessions" made to the Russians.

It became clear later, the Register said, that the sale of more than 500 million bushels of wheat and additional millions of bushels of feed grains to the Soviets had resulted in higher food prices in the U.S. and that the sale was subsidized even though the U.S. had the only large supplies of wheat available to the Soviets.

Responding to questions at a Senate hearing last week, an administration figure close to the deal said the grain sale was "a totally new experience and our government was not adequately organized for this new experience." In future dealings, he said, "these judgments will be made in a systematic way so that we will be negotiating with our eyes fully open."

Hopefully political pressures and secret negotiations for the sale of American commodities abroad will be things of the past. And having dealt once with the Soviets on a massive scale and having bungled it, those government officials involved in trade negotiations should be tougher to deal with in the future. The American grain farmer, the consumer and the food industry all have a right to expect it.

Welcome, Baptists

Lincoln extends a hearty welcome to delegates to the national convention of the American Baptist Church. There will be more than 5,000 of the delegates and visitors to the convention which opens today, making it an unusually large convention for Lincoln.

The Baptists are by far the largest Protestant group in the country — with a total of almost 27 million members in the 27 denominations of which the American Baptists, with 1,500,000 members are one.

As a church official noted recently, it is especially fitting that the Baptists come to this mid-country area because Baptists were one of the major denominations to organize churches on the frontier. Both Baptists and Methodists permitted lay ministers, and this facilitated the organization of early churches in sparsely settled areas.

The Baptists are one of the oldest Protestant groups in this country, dating back to the founding of a Baptist church by Roger Williams in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1639.

And they refer to themselves as "almost fiercely independent" with "no distinctive creed" and believing strongly in the separation of church and state.

Some of the delegates will be staying in University of Nebraska residence halls, a plan which allows family participation at lower cost than usual and that American Baptist officials hope will increase participation in the convention.

We hope the delegates find their visit here both inspirational and pleasant. Lincoln welcomes them.

A Surfeit Of Fervor

NEW YORK — The acquittal of most of the Camden 28 and the likely dismissal of charges against the rest is an interesting and not altogether reassuring sign of an age marked by moral and patriotic fervor.

Most important, the Camden jury decided courageously that the state has no right to lure people into a crime, aid them in committing it, then arrest them for doing so. This decision was taken after Federal Judge Clarkson S. Fisher had specifically instructed the jury that it was entitled to find the defendants innocent if, in fact, it believed the government itself had helped bring about the crime.

The facts, as presented in court, leave little doubt that that is precisely what the government did. A group of citizens in Camden, N.J., who opposed the war in Vietnam had plotted to break into the draft board offices there and destroy draft records; but, so they testified, they abandoned the plan because they did not know how to make the break-in.

A local contractor then joined the group and revived the plan. He also was an FBI informer. On the one hand, he provided the needed expertise for the break-in and most of the required tools, and constantly encouraged the project; on the other hand, he sent the FBI daily reports on the planning of the raid over a two-month period. Throughout that time, therefore, the government knew that a conspiracy was in existence, that a crime was being planned, but made no move to stop it until the act of commission. By hearsay, at least, the FBI informer suggested in court that this waiting game was at the instigation of the White House. The defense contended that the idea was to catch the group in the act, and then use the arrests to discredit the anti-war movement.

Of course, the defendants WERE caught in the act and arrested; but Judge Fisher said the jury could decide whether the government's use of the informer to stimulate commission of the crime was "offensive to the basic standard of decency and shocking to the universal sense of justice." The jury decided that it was, and acquittal followed.

If that were all, another triumph of the judicial system could be celebrated unambiguously, even by some who disapprove of what the Camden 28 did. Left to their own devices, they might not have done it; and anyway the government could have arrested and stopped them at almost any point before they acted. Government, after all, has shown no reluctance in recent years to bring conspiracy charges in many other cases.

But one juror said after the

ANTHONY LEWIS

The End Of The Affair

WASHINGTON — For four years most of the press and other national skeptics in Washington suspended their disbelief when it came to Henry Kissinger. He had three qualities that were in desperately short supply at the top of the Nixon administration: intelligence, humor and accessibility. He was worth seeing, and he could be seen.

Kissinger used his talents and his position shrewdly in these relationships. He gave liberal critics the impression that he really sympathized with their position. He played to their egos by seeking their understanding and support for his difficult role in a conservative government.

All of that is not quite yet in the past tense, but that is the way things are moving. Henry Kissinger's extraordinary status in Washington has been shaken.

The immediate reason is Kissinger's behavior in the matter of wiretapping his own staff members. Not only did he have the tapping done, when that fact caught up with him, he tried to explain it away in a series of inconsistent statements that, to put it politely, were attempts to deceive.

When first asked about the tapping, Kissinger gave a long and evasive answer. Then he indicated that he had had nothing to do with ordering the taps but knew about them and had sometimes read the transcripts. Next, in an interview, he said specifically that he had discussed security problems with then FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover but had not asked for "any particular form of investigation" or suggested "that any particular individual be investigated." Justice Department officials finally said that Kissinger had asked for the taps and named some men he wanted tapped.

The alleged security reason for undertaking the wiretapping is also revealing. It was a report in the New York Times in 1969 that American planes were bombing Cambodia—a fact that was hardly a secret to the communists but that was embarrassing to the Nixon administration when disclosed to the American people.

In his defense, Kissinger's friends have put it out that he wanted his staff members tapped to protect them from doubts being pressed by the security men. One of his senior aides, Kissinger has told people, had an FBI file "this thick." But any actual security violations would surely have been flagged by those in charge of the investigation. Why did Kissinger personally read transcripts of the home telephone conversations of his assistants and their wives? One must suppose that he wanted to catch any hints of flagging personal loyalty.

The whole business is distasteful in the extreme. It is a sad example of what we are learning from Watergate — the degraded standards of honor in our official life.

But Kissinger is also part of the deeper problem disclosed by Watergate: the centralization of power in the presidency, in disregard of law and institutions. In all but name he has been secretary of state—but one who operates without any feeling of responsibility toward Congress and without the wise if irritating restraints of bureaucracy.

No doubt it will be said that, unlike others on the White House staff, Kissinger meant well. But well-meaning men are even more dangerous when they abuse power. Kissinger's plausibility enables him to play a large role in advancing the extremely dangerous notion that what the President wants is above the law.

Before he left for his talks in Paris with Le Duc Tho, Kissinger conveyed a plea for just a little more congressional toleration of the bombing in Cambodia: It was our only way to make the North Vietnamese comply with the Vietnam peace agreement.

There is concentrated form was the disregard for fact and law that has so wounded this country. For by the accounts of our own embassy in Phnom Penh, it is overwhelmingly a civil war in Cambodia. We have intervened to keep the losing side afloat, at terrible cost to the Cambodians. It is the United States that is most massively violating the call for an end to foreign intervention in Cambodia—and violating, every day, the United States Constitution.

When the history of this time is written, Kissinger will get due credit for his part in the two major Nixon accomplishments that will be set against the black pages: the rapprochement with China and the Soviet Union. But Kissinger will also go down as the salesman of an endless war—a better salesman than a more openly right-wing figure would have been. And he will share in responsibility for the resulting strains on American institutions.

A high-ranking friend has been calling the press and pleading that Henry Kissinger is a national asset and ought to be protected. Kissinger is in many ways an exceptional person. He is entitled now to compassion—but no longer to toleration.

Resignation

Lincoln, Neb.

Richard Nixon won with a tainted election because of the suppression of the Watergate investigations before the election, and because of the illicit tampering with the choices for the Democratic nomination for president.

Although we do not know if President Nixon had any prior knowledge of these occurrences, it is still his ultimate responsibility because these people worked for him. The election results might have been different if the facts had been known before the election and if there had not been tampering with the nominees, it is possible that the Democrats might have had a more viable candidate.

Impeachment for several reasons seems ill advised. It would further divide and polarize the country. It would leave us with a weak leader if impeachment proceedings failed. Moreover, it would result in the presidency's going to another person who may not be in that position but for the illicit election.

Such a victory should not continue to exist for four more years. It appears to me that our federal system should be able to accommodate the resignation of both the president and vice president and be able to call for a special election.

Low Ratings

Ord, Neb.

In The Star editorial, "Low Watergate Ratings," (May 21), it was asked: "Who cares about reality?"

I think a point was missed in the reason for the low ratings.

First of all, I believe that the sanctimonious atmosphere that the hearings have caused me at least to lose interest.

To me and those I have visited with about this, it seems that this only scratches the surface of the shenanigans going on in Washington and so this is more political oriented than it should be.

Finally, I believe that this reflects in a large way the general morality of the country further shown by the permissive and self-centered mores now current in the electorate.

I think that these additional reasons cause the low ratings much more than The Star editorial's suggestion.

Lincoln, Neb.

As a farmer's wife, I used to be up at the crack of dawn, dressed for the day's work. I fixed a hearty breakfast for three hungry and hard-working men, took care of the chickens and other chores and sent three youngsters off to school. Then there was dinner to prepare and soon the youngsters were home from school, and they took up their various chores. The boy looked after the pigs and his pony. What is more pleasant to see than a boy with a pony and a dog. My heart sings even now when I am old, to think of it.

Some days I took the place of a man, driving to town for repairs, seed corn, picking up extra men to help with the harvest. Some didn't even know oats from wheat or how to put up a shock, but at the table they were O.K.

The girls helped in the kitchen and learned to cook and sew a fine seam. The son helped in the field and learned to drive a truck when he had to stand up to reach the brakes. We sent ours through school and all graduated from college, and those were pretty hard times.

After 28 years of renting, we bought a farm, and worked from sun-up till sun-down. Often we had meals to fix for eight or 10 men and lunch to take to the field. I didn't have much time to play.

Farmers have had a hard time this year, with snow, rain and flooding and snow covering the milo early. And now there is a gas shortage. Let's keep the pleasure riders off the road, and save gas for the farmer who raises our daily bread and the laboring man who keeps the wheels turning. Times have been pretty good for some, but it is the small farmer and renter who have to take the lumps, with repairs and the cost of machinery being what they are.

Treasury Official Sees No $1 A Gallon Gasoline

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no cause for concern that gasoline prices will rise to astronomical levels such as 75 cents and $1 a gallon, Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon said Tuesday.

Simon, chairman of the Nixon administration's Oil Policy Committee, told a House subcommittee studying the energy crisis that even if the price of crude oil were doubled, the price of gasoline would go up by only eight cents a gallon. He conceded gasoline prices would increase during this summer's shortage, but said this would not be nearly as much as forecast in some quarters.

Detailing the administration's steps to increase oil and gasoline supplies, Simon also disclosed a list of suggestions for consumers to conserve gas and oil this year. They ranged from forming car pools to walking more to taking vacations by train or bus.

Simon dropped strong hints that the administration is leaning toward adopting a mandatory oil and gasoline allocation program this summer to prevent severe shortages in some states and to make sure key areas of the economy have gasoline to carry out their business.

Simon noted there are forecasts that the price of gasoline will reach 75 cents to $1 this summer and said, "this concern is unfounded."

Gasoline prices in Europe, notably England, Germany, France and Italy, are high because taxes in these countries are so high, he said. "By comparison, taxes represent only 30 per cent of the price in the United States."

Shortly after he testified, the Interior Department released voluntary guidelines for allocating oil and gasoline. Basically, they asked that oil companies supply their non-affiliated customers the same percentage of oil and gasoline supplies they provided during the year that ended Sept. 30, 1972. The aim is to make sure that independent oil companies continue to receive supplies from major oil firms.

In addition, the government retained the power to require major oil companies to distribute as much as 10 per cent of their supplies to priority areas of the economy such as farming, food processing and state and local government services.

While Simon said he thought the voluntary plan would work, he said the administration would not hesitate to make the system mandatory if crops are threatened or if vital industries are faced with the possibility of closing.

Simon said the Cost of Living Council is considering a rule that would allow another big boost in the price of gasoline. This move would permit oil companies to pass on to consumers the increased price of foreign oil without taking into account price control regulations.

As for conserving fuel, Simon had a list of 19 different things consumers could do to save on gasoline. Here is a partial list:

- "Keep engine in top shape. A poorly tuned engine reduces mileage by 10 per cent.
- "Walk more.
- "Plan trips to stored — combining visits to cleaners, drug, department and grocery stores.

"Use car air conditioners sparingly."

The list also urged warming up the car engine for driving, using multi-grade motor oil, minimizing recreational driving, and reducing speed to 50 miles per hour.

Also, Simon said drivers should keep their tires properly inflated and start slowly and stop slowly when they are in traffic.

He also said the public might use smaller cars with better gasoline performance to conserve fuel.

White House To Entertain Ex-POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will address more than 500 returned Vietnam war prisoners at the State Department Thursday afternoon prior to a White House dinner in their honor that night.

The White House announced Tuesday that Nixon will welcome the former POWs in the main auditorium of the State Department at 2:30 p.m. and then greet each man in a receiving line.

While the men are occupied, wives and guests of the POWs will be entertained at tea by Mrs. Nixon in the department's Jefferson Room.

Guests for the black-tie dinner, to be served in a large tent on the South Lawn of the White House, will begin arriving at 6:30 p.m.

The President and Mrs. Nixon and Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew will join the guests at about 8 p.m.

An hour of entertainment will follow with Bob Hope as master of ceremonies.

The White House said composer Irving Berlin will be a special guest and listed those who will entertain as the New Christy Minstrels, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Vic Damone, John Wayne, Phillis Diller, Joey Heatherton, Ricardo Montalban, Roy Acuff, Delores Hope, Jimmy Stewart, Sammy Davis Jr., and Les Brown and His Band of Renown.

Cox Invites Attorneys To Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archibald Cox, the former solicitor general designated special Watergate prosecutor, Tuesday asked the U.S. attorneys working on the case to meet with him sometime Wednesday.

U.S. Atty. Harold H. Titus Jr. said the request came in a telephone call to him from Cox.

"During the conversation he invited me and the prosecutive team in the Watergate case to meet with him Wednesday, probably at the Justice Department, but at a time and place designated by him," Titus said.

Cox, of Harvard Law School and a Democrat, was designated special prosecutor by Elliot L. Richardson, whose appointment as attorney general is pending before the Senate.

Cox appeared with Richardson before the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday and pledged he would maintain a position largely independent of the administration and would pursue the investigation wherever it led, including the White House.

Titus declined to answer any questions except to say the meeting probably will be held in the afternoon.

Earl J. Silbert, Titus' principal assistant and head of the three-man team which has been presenting evidence to a federal grand jury, refused to comment on reports he and his two colleagues will offer to step aside.

Native-Born Troops Retake Deserted Cambodian Hamlet

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Government troops recaptured on Tuesday a deserted hamlet that rebels had taken south of Phnom Penh six days ago, the military command reported.

Two columns, led by skilled Cambodian-born troops trained in South Vietnam, linked up 25 miles south of Phnom Penh on Highway 3 to retake Doeum Rorak, officials said.

The command did not disclose casualties for either side in the operation, which involved elements of the 47th and 51st brigades.

The command said its troops came from Prey Totung, the government front line 18 miles south of Phnom Penh, and Tram Khnar, a provincial capital 10 miles farther south.

Antigovernment forces had surrounded Tram Khnar when they struck three small nearby outposts on May 16, but subsequent attacks by the American and Cambodian air forces relieved pressure on Tram Khnar.

Two other government posts along Highway 3 that fell with Doeum Rorak — Ang Krong and Lovea — apparently remained in antigovernment hands.

According to field commanders, about 150 of some 230 soldiers manning the outposts fought the attackers until their ammunition was exhausted and then fled to the safety of Prey Totung. The fate of the remaining 80 was unknown but little hope was held out for their survival.

Nearly all farmers and villagers inhabiting the 10-mile stretch also had fled northward.

field officers said. On Highway 4, Phnom Ienh's link with the seaport of Kompong Som 147 miles to the southwest, government soldiers sought to dislodge insurgent forces who blockaded an eight-mile segment of the road.

The blockade 15 miles from Kompong Som, Cambodia's only deep-water port, halted shipment of military and other essential goods arriving at the seaport.

Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho met near Paris for six hours Tuesday in their longest session on how to end violations of the Indochina cease-fire.

They agreed to meet again Wednesday, and left their deputies to draft what was believed to be an interpretation of the Jan. 27 cease-fire agreement.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon government made a proposal in the two-party Joint Military Commission for implementing the Vietnam cease-fire. It was rejected by the Viet Cong, according to a Saigon command spokesman.

Saigon had proposed delineation of zones controlled by each side and a joint appeal by the four parties to the cease-fire for an end to the bloodshed in Vietnam.

A Viet Cong statement countered that Saigon was violating the cease-fire and asked the two sides to take up a proposal by the Communists on May 15 which called for a two-party joint appeal.

The Saigon government also announced that it opposes investigating Viet Cong charges of US air attacks this month around the Communist headquarters north of Saigon. Saigon's opposition could block investigation by the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

Agnew Talks About Economy, Not Watergate

Miami Beach (UPI) — Vice President Spiro Agnew called on Americans to have confidence in themselves and their system to solve the nation's problems.

"This is the time to have confidence in the ability of Americans to solve new problems effectively and ethically — not to reject the modern world in an atavistic yearning for a paradise lost — a utopia that never was," Agnew said.

The vice president delivered a 20-minute luncheon speech to a convention of the Mass Retailing Institute, without once mentioning the Watergate political spying scandal which is before a Senate Committee hearing in Washington. He confined his remarks to a general discussion of the economy.

Senate Overrides Presidential Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday voted to override President Nixon's veto of a bill requiring Senate approval of two key White House budget men.

The vote was 62 to 22, six votes more than the necessary two-thirds voting to override.

The matter now goes to the House, where Democratic leaders said the veto would be difficult to override. A House vote is scheduled for Wednesday.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said before the Senate vote:

"This issue affects squarely the balance of the executive and legislative branches... The Senate faces one of its most severe tests on whether it is ready, willing and able to restore itself to the status of a co-equal branch."

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said the President's veto "clashes directly with his expressions of a new era of cooperation."

The Senate had originally passed the bill requiring confirmation of the director and deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget by a vote of 73 to 19. House passage had been on a vote of 229-171.

The original Senate margin was larger than the two-thirds required for passage over a veto. The House vote was less than two-thirds. Both branches have to vote to override the veto stands.

The measure, drafted by Sen.

Sam Ervin, D-N.C., would have the immediate effect of the Senate having to vote on confirmation of the current chief officers, Roy Ash and Frederick Malek, respectively.

Ervin and his allies see this as one element in what they call reasserting Congress' constitutional powers.

The budget head has become one of the most powerful officials in government, often having a major voice as to whether and how a department's programs are to continue.

In vetoing the bill Nixon said the budget director has been a White House official for 50 years, serving as an intimate adviser to the President.

The President won two other veto tests this year with the Senate failing to reject the veto on a vocational rehabilitation bill and the House sustaining his killing of a rural water and sewer grant bill.

On the OMB test, Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said in advance: "As of this moment I would think the veto would be overridden."

He said that "given the current climate, it will be more difficult" than the vote last month on upholding the vocational bill veto.

Asked whether he was referring to the Watergate scandal by mentioning the current climate, Tower, who is chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, replied: "What else could I be talking about?"

$14 Million Trust Fund Not Much Use To Dogs

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Five years after they inherited a fortune, 74 dogs still stand between a university and about $14 million. A veterinarian says some of the dogs could live another 12 years.

When Eleanor Richey died in 1968, she left her estate of $4.5 million to 150 stray dogs she collected over 15 years. Four of her relatives contested the will, and in 1972 a court ruled that each relative would get five per cent of the estate and the rest would go to the dogs. After the last dog dies or in 20 years, the money goes to Auburn University for veterinary research.

By the time of the ruling, the estate had grown to more than $14 million.

Dr. I.C. Frederickson, a veterinarian who cares for the animals at their 180-acre ranch near this Fort Lauderdale suburb, said Tuesday 74 of the dogs are still alive.

"I think we'll have dogs here for 10 years," says Frederickson, who visits the ranch three days a week to examine the dogs in their private clinic. He said the youngest dog is five years old, and their number statistically increases the chances that some will be very long-lived.

A basset hound that was 10 years old when Miss Richey adopted it died last winter at the ripe old age of 18.

To guard against another generation of lucky dogs, the animals are segregated by sex.

A spokesman for Broward National Bank in Fort Lauderdale, which acts as trustee for the animals, said the dogs' money is invested in stocks and bonds picked for long term growth. It costs less than $20,000 a year to house and feed the dogs and pay the salaries of their three caretakers.

Unlike the happy mutt that roams with neighborhood children, the rich canines lead a dog's life: spending most of their time in small, fenced runs. They get out for a bit of exercise each day.

States Given Ratings On 'Quality Of Life'

Kansas City (AP) — California, Colorado, Connecticut, Washington, Oregon and Wyoming have excellent ratings in a "quality of life" study released Tuesday by a Kansas City-based research center. At the other end of the scale, with substandard marks, is much of the Old South.

The study, based on data that was compiled from abroad range of sources dated 1970, was completed by Dr. Ben Chieh-Liu, senior economist at Midwest Research Institute MRI in independent, not-for-profit, performing research on contracts from government, industry and other groups.

The states and the District of Columbia were rated in nine areas affecting their citizens, individual status, individual equality, living conditions, agriculture, technology, economic status, education, health and welfare and state and local governments.

In all, more than 100 factors were studied in assigning scores to an index mean, 100. Criteria considered for individual status, for example, included employment percentages, local and state expenditures on education, medical services and income.

States receiving excellent ratings in this one category, in order of their appearance on the index, were Colorado, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Connecticut, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming and North Dakota.

California, out-ranked in the combination of nine categories, was listed first under economic status — some of the criteria being per capita income, manufacturing industries, banks, assets — and state and local government. The latter category was based on various factors listed under "informed citizenry," "professionalism of administration" and "performance of administration."

California was appeared third in agriculture, fifth in technology and tenth in education.

In addition to the index score, the states were rated A (excellent), B (average) or C (substandard).

Eleven states listed as substandard, in order of their appearance on the combined index, are Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, Arkansas, West Virginia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina.

Here is a sampling of some of the findings:

—Federal expenditures on manpower and training programs ranged from $9 per capita in Michigan, Nebraska and New Jersey to $97 per capita in the nation's capital.

—Local and state expenditures in education were between $189 per capita in Tennessee and $400 in Alaska.

—The percentage of occupied housing units without plumbing facilities was between 2.1 per cent in California and 24.3 per cent in Mississippi.

—Parks and recreational acreage per 100,000 population was between 5.7 acres in Louisiana and 523.5 acres in Maine.

—The percentage of families with income under the poverty levels ($3,765 for a family of four) ranked from 5.3 per cent in Connecticut to 28.9 per cent in Mississippi.

—Income and material wealth were not found to be significant factors except in states "with very low levels of per capita income which also tend to rank low in all measures of quality of life."

Train Jumps Track; Cleanup Work Begins

Cleanup work was underway Tuesday near St. Mary in southeastern Nebraska after 38 cars of an 88-car Burlington Northern freight train jumped the tracks Monday night. At least a quarter mile of track was ripped up, authorities said. No flammable nor toxic materials were contained in the cars in-involved. Authorities theorized a loose piece of track was jarred out of a trestle to cause the mishap. There were no injuries. (Star Photo)

World-Herald Dispute Positions Unchanged

Omaha, (AP) — No progress was made at a meeting Tuesday toward settling a labor dispute between the World-Herald and the printers union, Commissioner Larry Berry of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said.

"There has been no change from either party's previous position. I don't expect to call another meeting in the near future," Berry said.

He said the meeting of the negotiating teams for the two sides lasted about 45 minutes. It was the first since most members of Local 190 of the International Typographical Union walked off their jobs May 4

Meyer Sentenced On Hog Stealing Count

North Platte (AP) — A North Platte resident, Frederick Meyer, has been sentenced to two to three years in the State Penal Complex on a charge of hog stealing. During a preliminary hearing in Lincoln County court, Judge Ron Ruff dismissed the charges and County Attorney Walter Mulkin refuted the charge in District Court. Judge Ruff said he dismissed the charges because the county attorney's office did not present enough evidence concerning the charge. The sentence was handed down by Judge Keith Windrum.

2 Catholic Parishes To Be Formed In G.I.

Grand Island (AP) — Two new Catholic parishes will be formed in Grand Island as of June 7, Bishop John J. Sullivan, bishop of the Diocese of Grand Island, announced.

Bishop Sullivan said 28 new assignments would be made throughout the diocese.

The new parish of St. Leo will be created in southwest Grand Island and will be served by Father James O'Kane, who is presently serving Mt. Carmel Home, Good Samaritan Hospital, and the Youth Development House in Kearney.

The Rev. John E. Schiefel was named pastor of the new Parish of the Resurrection in northwest Grand Island. He now serves St. John's Church at Stapleton and St. Agnes Mission at Arnold.

Bishop Sullivan said Territorial boundaries of the two new parishes would be established later. Two sisters will serve in pastoral roles in each parish.

Bishop Sullivan announced a number of reassignments within the diocese.

These included: The Rev. Msgr. Carl T. Hayden to become pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Kimball; Msgr. Hayden has been pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral parish in Grand Island. In Kimball, he will replace the Rev. Msgr. Leo P. Keating, who has resigned because of health.

The Rev. Carl T. Ferris, chaplain of the Newman Apostolate at Kearney State College, was appointed pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral parish in Grand Island.

The Rev. Thomas E. Mullen, pastor of St. Ann's in Lexington, was appointed pastor of Blessed Sacrament Parish in Grand Island. He succeeds the late Father Paul Button.

Championship Lost; Everroad To Retire As State Frog Master?

Omaha (AP) — Former Lt. Gov. John Everroad of Omaha says he may retire from international competition after long service as Nebraska's state frog master.

Everroad last weekend lost a national championship for the first time in three years.

Nebraska's entry in the weekend International Frog Jumping Jubilee at Angels Camp, Calif., placed fourth in the governor's competition.

The amphibian — "Nebraska

No. 1 Again" — totaled 10 feet 6 inches in three jumps. That was far off the winning total of 19 feet by the winner entered by Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon.

Everroad was on hand the two previous years as the Nebraska entry won the governor's competition.

This year, he trained the frog found in his pond at Yutan, but was unable to attend. So he shipped it by air and had State Sen. James Slattery of Nevada do the prodding.

The Monday night fire are just beginning.

The ranch mixed its own feed for more than 35,000 turkeys on range, and Ferebee said nearly all of the mixed feed—some 40 tons—was destroyed when the fire swept through the feed mill.

"My main problem now is trying to figure out how to feed the turkeys," Ferebee said. "but I'm sure some of the feed mills around here will cooperate."

Ferebee said his $150,000 damage estimate does not include the extra costs involved in purchasing feed. He said the intense heat from the burning mill ignited some of the 24 tons of soybeans and a shipment of alfalfa stored in four tall bins near the structure.

In addition, the feed truck parked inside the mill was destroyed and a 60-foot elevator outside it buckled under the heat and was declared a total loss.

Although the cause of the fire has not been determined, Ferebee theorized that one of the pumps in the hot water system used to heat liquid fat in the mill's fat room overheated.

Ferebee was attending a meeting when the fire broke out. It was discovered by Charlotte Stanley, the wife of Robert Stanley, one of the hired hands who live near the feed mill.

Stanley and another hired hand, Gay Doremus, attempted to get the feed truck out of the burning mill, but the intense smoke and flames drove them back. Gasoline in the truck triggered a secondary explosion.

The ranch is one of the largest of its kind in Nebraska, with this year's production estimated at 120,000 turkeys.

"This is in the early part of the growing season," Ferebee said. "We had no losses as far as turkeys, but in addition to the building, it will cost us considerably to have to go out and buy this feed."

Firemen from Gibbon, Minden and Kearney responded to the blaze.

Matusek Fund Drive Is Started

Hickman (UPI) — A fund raising campaign has been started to help pay the expenses of a Lancaster County family who suffered burns during an explosion.

Herman Thibodeau, who organized the campaign for the Matusek family, said Matusek and his son, Quinton, 3, were severely burned from the gas explosion, while their wife and mother, Sharon, suffered burns on her feet.

Thibodeau, a Nebraska Public Power District employee from Portland, and a friend of the family, said Matusek and his young son were flown by a military jet to the U.S. Army Brooke Medical Center in San Antonio, Tex.

Matusek suffered mostly second and some third degree burns over more than 40% of his body, while his son was in critical condition with mostly second and third degree burns over 60% of his body.

Course Taken; Inmate Enthused

A Nebraska Reformatory inmate is "charged up" with rehabilitation plans after completing a 40-hour segment of an electric lineman's training course with the Lincoln Electric System (LES).

The training included a rigorous course in climbing and working on 35- to 40-foot power poles, part of an on-the-job training program including closed-circuit TV and a lineman's scholarship arrangement for high school graduates.

The inmate's training was so thorough, LES reported, that he missed a ride "home" one night. LES Line Instructor Jeri Lannom gave the concerned inmate a ride back to the reformatory after a day of pole-top instructions on handling equipment, making proper line connections, safety measures, knot-tying and other technical matters.

The inmate, who earned the standard overhead line school graduation certificate given to all LES trainees who successfully complete the week-long course, attended the LES pole-climbing school site in southwest Lincoln without an escort.

Jack Wilber, LES job training and safety supervisor, and Ignatius Brown, electrical instructor for Nebraska Vocational Rehabilitation Services at the reformatory, joined Lannom in praising the inmate's interest and progress in his electrical training courses at LES and at the reformatory.

Brown, who praised LES for its cooperative attitude in assisting with inmate training, noted he now has other inmates taking electrical courses under the rehabilitation program.

Brown said the 25-year-old inmate "has a very good record and has completed 848 hours of classroom work and training in electricity." He said the inmate assists with other inmates' training under the rehabilitation program and is active in the reformatory's Explorer Post and the Jaycee chapter.

Deposit Slip Slips $10,000,000

A clear case of a deposit slip slip. Ivan Upchurch, of 3150 Dudley, deposited $25 in his checking account at the City National Bank depot drive-in Tuesday afternoon, but when he got home he discovered he had been given a deposit slip for $10,000,025.00. As of

Marina Is Planned Near Fort Calhoun

Ft. Calhoun (AP) — Developers have disclosed plans for a $4 million-plus marina-residential area along the Missouri River south of Ft. Calhoun.

They propose 300 boat slips, a boat ramp repair and sales area, clubhouse, lounge and restaurant, picnic areas and trails in addition to a residential community of homes valued at $35,000 and up.

The project, Little Denmark Inc. has been shown to the Washington County Planning Commission. A public hearing will be held.

John E. Gage, Little Denmark president, said Monday if Washington County officials approve, construction of the first marina facilities and homes will begin this spring.

The marina, restaurant, lounge and picnic areas would be open to the public, both from the road and from the river. The area is roughly two miles north of the Douglas County line.

Gage said the first phase is expected to take several years to complete. He said Little Den-

Mr. Yates was a former vice president of the U.S. National Bank in Omaha. He retired in 1945.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday at Trinity Cathedral, with burial at Prospect Hill Cemetery.

He is survived by three daughters, 10 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

Omaha Petition Drive Falls Short Of Mark

OMAHA (AP) — Douglas County Election Commissioner Mike Boyle said Tuesday only 10,008 signatures — far short of the required number — were turned in by sponsors of a petition drive for a grand jury to investigate narcotics traffic.

Robert T. Jones had said Monday he thought there were 11,400 signatures. Law requires 11,258 valid signatures to force the calling of a grand jury.

Boyle said his office would not check the validity of the signatures because even if all were valid they would not be enough.

However, a grand jury is still possible. County Atty. Donald Knowles said if the drive fails but a "significant number" of signatures were obtained, he

ACTION LINE
Or Write P.O. Box 81669, Lincoln, NE 68501

I am building a hang-glider and need three lengths of aluminum tubing, but I have been unable to find any in the area with the right specifications. Can ACTION LINE help me find some?

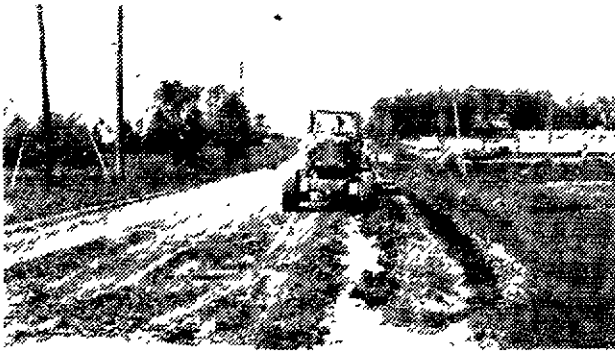

—M. P. Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to Wes Murphy, with the General Aviation District Office of the Federal Aviation Administration, you can contact any fixed base operator in the area for the information.

We contacted Monte Cooper at Duncan Aviation and he told us that he didn't have any tubing with those particular specifications in stock because they didn't need to carry it. However, he said if you would contact him, he would be happy to order some through the firm's supplier.

What can be done about the terrible condition of North 1st Street? This has been causing real problems for the people in the area.

—M. A. Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Public Works Director Bob Obering said the city has been providing the same kind of maintenance for North 1st that it has for other gravel roads in the city.

However, he noted that because of the mobile home courts in the area the traffic volume is greater than usual for a gravel road.

Obering said that plans for paving the road are now in the design stage, and he told ACTION LINE that North 1st would be paved sometime this year.

Does ACTION LINE know of any methods to keep the birds from eating the cherries in my cherry tree?

—W. B. Lincoln

—G. W. Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There are apparently no safe and easy methods that are completely effective.

Emery Nelson, Lancaster County extension agent, said the sprays and repellents that are allowed are mostly ineffective. He noted that devices for frightening the birds seem to work the best, but that in the city, noise makers would be prohibited.

Nelson said the birds would eventually catch on to bottles or cans tied in the tree but that these would work for awhile. He pointed out that according to tradition a stuffed or paper mache owl works the best.

I ordered a pair of golf shoes from the Dynaflyte Manufacturing Corporation of New Hyde Park, N.Y. The shoes were too small and I returned them, but have heard nothing since then. What can ACTION LINE do?

—O. S. Hastings

ACTION LINE: Apparently the company has not received the returned shoes but if they were insured all is not lost.

A spokeswoman for its customer relations division, Mrs. Mary Parker, said a possible mistake might have been, that you sent them to their N. Y. office rather than the one in Massachusetts. She noted that this in itself would cause a two-week delay.

Mrs. Parker said the firm has no record of the shoes' return, but that if you insured them in the mail and have a receipt the firm will honor the receipt even though the company doesn't have the merchandise.

I sent to the House of Wesley for some plants in November of 1972 and when they wouldn't grow, I wrote the company in January of 1973.

The company sent me a letter saying to wait another six weeks, well I've waited longer than that and I now want either a refund or some new plants. Can ACTION LINE help me?

—H. S. Lincoln

ACTION LINE: We contacted the company and a spokesman for its customer relations department assured us that the matter will be looked into immediately.

The company said it will send both you and ACTION LINE a letter about what action it will take. The letter should arrive within the week.

How does one go about finding a genealogist in the Lincoln Area?

—Mrs. H. H. Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Marvin Kivett, State Historical Society Director said his department provides some genealogy work as a public service.

Kivett said the department gets the material from clip files of newspaper obituaries. He noted they are not equipped to do any in-depth work but that they have a number of people who do this type of work on a fee basis.

For further information, write Mrs. Louise Small, librarian, State Historical Society, 1500 R St., Lincoln, 68508.

Can I get into trouble if I remove the emission control device from my car? With the fuel crisis everyone's talking about, I want to get better mileage for my car.

—D. T. Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to an attorney for the Environmental Protection Agency Timothy L. Amsden, no.

Amsden said the only requirement is that the device be operable when it leaves the original car dealer. He said they are the only ones who can be penalized for tampering with the emission devices.

Japan Imports Words

TOKYO (AP) — The world thinks of Japan as a major exporter. Less known are its imports — of foreign words. They range from "hanbaagu" — hamburger — to "unmanribu" — women's lib.

Japanese is written in Chinese characters, working in a couple of simpler tongues called Katakana and Hiragana to make things clearer. It is generally considered one of the world's most difficult languages, and has met the challenge of modern lingo by coming words of its own from the foreign originals.

Thus the word receipt becomes "reshito," never mind becomes "neba main," and don't mind becomes "don main."

A "piro" is a clown, taken from the French word "pirot." Cards are "karuta," from the Portuguese "carta," and a part-time job is "arubaito" from the German "arbeit," meaning work.

Much of the foreign language of sports has passed into Japanese. Baseball or "beisu boru" is a principal borrower with terms such as "hutto" and "outo." A player trying to decide whether to steal from "fusuuto" — first — to "sekando" can be in a "jurenma" or dilemma.

From the field of science comes "konpyuta," or computer, "toransistia terebi," transistor television and "tekonoroji" for technology.

The Japanese have taken some foreign words and given them a special meaning of their own. One of these is "pinku," from pink. The connotation is sexy. "Pinku muudo" or pink mood, suggests a sexy mood. "Poruno" is pornography.

Another special word is "hai kara" meaning fashionable, from the early style of high collars imported from the West. "Saabisu," or service, means to give something extra for nothing.

In the export field, the Japanese have a reputation — deserved or otherwise — for aggressiveness. They have been dubbed economic animals, a phrase that comes out "ekonomikku animaru."

Kissinger 'Has No Intentions Of Resigning'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said again Tuesday presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger has absolutely no intention of resigning.

Gold and currency speculation in Europe was spurred at one point last week by a rumor that President Nixon's assistant for national security affairs intended to resign.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said he talked by telephone Monday with Kissinger, who is in Paris for talks with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Warren reported Kissinger "said he has not offered to resign and has no intention of doing so."

U.S. Vetoes Action On Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. and British vetoes killed a seven-nation attempt in the Security Council Tuesday to broaden the U.N. trade embargo against Rhodesia to include South Africa and Portugal.

Ambassador John A. Scali, casting the fourth U.S. veto in U.N. history, declared "To pass a resolution which is clearly unenforceable would seriously damage the reputation and credibility of the United Nations and further erode public confidence in the United Nations' ability to act in a meaningful way."

Sir Colin Crowe of Britain, whose veto was perhaps his last U.N. vote before his retirement next Sunday, said he "firmly rejects the charges of collusion and ill faith which have been made against my government and its predecessors" in connection with the breakaway British colony of Rhodesia.

The resolution failed on a vote of 11 to 2, with the United States and Britain voting against it and France and Austria abstaining. A negative vote of any one of the five big powers kills an otherwise passing resolution.

The resolution would have ordered all countries to limit immediately their purchases of "any products" from South Africa and the Portuguese territories of Mozambique and Angola to 1965 levels.

The object was to stop Rhodesian exports through those neighboring areas in violation of the council's sweeping seven-year-old economic sanctions against Rhodesia. The sanctions aim at forcing the white-minority regime to yield to African majority rule.

Sponsors of the vetoed resolution were Guinea, Indonesia, Kenya, Panama, Peru, Sudan and Yugoslavia.

Jurisdiction Of Military Aid May Be Shifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted tentatively Tuesday to shift military aid for South Vietnam and Laos to State Department jurisdiction.

Such assistance now is funded through the Defense Department budget.

At an initial closed-door meeting on a military aid program for next year, the committee selected a phase-out bill by Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., as its vehicle for action.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said he will propose a three-year phaseout, instead of two years, for military assistance grants.

LIZA AND PETER... new love announced in London.

Liza Says It's Off With Desi; Now She Loves Peter Sellers

LONDON (AP) — A giggling, wisecracking Liza Minnelli announced Tuesday the end of her engagement to Desi Arnaz Jr. and proclaimed her love for British comic Peter Sellers.

She bustled into a crowded news conference, briefly hummed what sounded like the refrain "Life is a cabaret, old chum," and declared it was all very simple.

"My engagement, our relationship, had been deteriorating for some time — pleasantly, luckily," she said, fumbling with a pendant around her neck. "We are no longer engaged. It's all called off."

Liza, 27, said she met comedian Sellers, 47, for the first time when she came to London for a series of concerts this month, leaving 21-year-old Arnaz in Hollywood.

Sellers, at present separated from his third wife, had been her regular companion since she stormed theaterland here May 4 with a rousing performance at the London Palladium.

They went out together Monday night and dined late at a West End restaurant, entertaining customers with an impromptu cabaret duet.

"I fell in love with this man Peter Sellers and I am pleased to say he fell in love with me. I am really terrifically happy," the Oscar-winning star of the movie "Cabaret" bubbled.

Does she plan to wed Sellers? "No, please, that's private," she squealed.

Sellers, star of such films as "I'm All Right, Jack," "The Millionaire" and "Dr. Strangelove," separated a year ago from Amanda Quarry, 24-year-old stepdaughter of Lord Mancroft. He was previously married to Britt Ekland, a curvaceous Swedish actress, and British actress Anne oe Liza said she will be leaving London shortly for concerts in Chicago. She added she would return to London and would probably live here.

Liza and Sellers later appeared together on a lawn outside the studios.

The British actor, speaking for the first time about the romance, said: "We both believe in humor and in having good times. We haven't found anything that we disagree on yet. We will live where we work and and keep together as much as we can."

Liza turned to a newsmen and said: "I have fallen in love with a genius."

Washington (UPI) — A typewritten, blue index card was placed before the seat of each of the seven senators on the Senate Watergate Committee before the start on Tuesday's hearing. It read:

"Please note — all television microphones, become hot the moment a senator walks into the room. Please keep all confidential conversations in a low tone."

San Francisco — Sunny days. Around Snug Harbor all the chicks are working on suntans. You must be the color of a Navajo or you are nowhere. (Bikinis getting smaller this year. Or am I just getting near-sighted?)

Summer is when the white skins are segregated. We won't even bus a person who isn't tanned. The aristocracy of summer is golden brown.

Around here part of the family gets brown without even trying. It's a matter of pigmentation, the pigs.

Sad to say, the others get red. Sore, too.

People who burn hate people who tan easily. (Otherwise we are a contented scatter.)

The tanning half are not sensitive. They can walk on hot sand and crushed lava. Pick up hot plates without crying — "ouch!"

The rest of us are tender folk. It's high breeding does it. "Only peasants can walk around barefoot on hot sand!" I said.

"Let me tell you a story."

I tell stories with a moral. A bedtime story teller. Great demand for my services.

"Once upon a time there was a princess. There was another chick claimed she was the princess. Actually she was just a fast-talking little klutz who could pick up hot plates and tan without burning.

"However, the Queen didn't know which was which. So she put them to bed. And secretly she put a pea under each mattress."

I said: "These were not soft peas like you get from a can. They were hard peas — like they had when I was a boy."

"The real princess could not sleep a wink with such a hard pea under her. The fake princess slept like a log. She could have slept on a can of peas, she was that ordinary."

Soon be June and time to get married, girls. The Princess who slept on the pea married the Prince. Lively times in their bed, I imagine. A chick who cannot sleep with a pea under the mattress — well, it staggers the imagination. (I had a little cooking sherry, but I'm not staggering.)

Be careful where you marry. If you are going to marry, do it in Washington, D.C., Maine or Vermont, North and South Dakota.

In these ever-loving states, the odds are 7-to-1 against divorce. People who marry in Arizona and California have only an even money bet.

Easy come, easy go.

Los Angeles is a marrying town but a quick bust village, too. Marriages and dissolutions come out even on the statistics. One for one.

Mrs. Joyce B. brought in a strange complaint to His Honor.

The day she and her husband separated, he buried her false teeth in the backyard. Wouldn't tell her where.

She mumbled this to the judge, for she was lost without choppers.

Well, there are new laws in California. No more complaining is accepted. They just dissolve the marriage like an aspirin. Twice as fast.

Great frustration to ladies. No longer able to get it off their chests: "I gave him the best years of my life, and he beat me like a gong."

Aristotle, the Athenian brain, said: "The best marrying age for women is 18. The best for men is 37."

How he figured this out is not stated. A Greek cat with plenty brain and also heart.

★ America's Favorite ★

In salad dressing, it's flavor that counts. Miracle Whip Salad Dressing's lively fresh flavor comes from a special blend of spices and a blending secret that is Kraft's alone. Miracle Whip is perfect just the way it is. Once you compare it with some of the "me-too" dressings we're sure you'll agree, no matter what, there's only one Miracle Whip. And that's why Miracle Whip makes a sandwich, a salad, seafood or cold cuts taste so fresh and lively. And why Miracle Whip is America's favorite salad dressing.

conZOOsations

BY LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Whoa Whoa My name is Simon, and I am the wise old, but young, owl at the Lincoln Children's Zoo.

I am just a mere five or six weeks old and originally hail from the Hastings area where I became an orphan at a very young age.

Now a resident of the Zoo, I have my own "apartment" in the Mynah Birds' house right inside the front gate. I really like my home here, but putting up with the Mynahs' "meows" and wolf whistles day in and day out gets to be a bit much for someone as sagacious as myself.

I belong to the group of birds called Great Horned Owls (Bubo virginianus) which, in turn, are related to the Eagle Owl, one of the largest families of owls in the entire world.

We are called Horned Owl, because of the tufts of feathers on our heads. Mine are not very prominent, but then I am still a baby, with baby owl down, undeveloped talons and so forth.

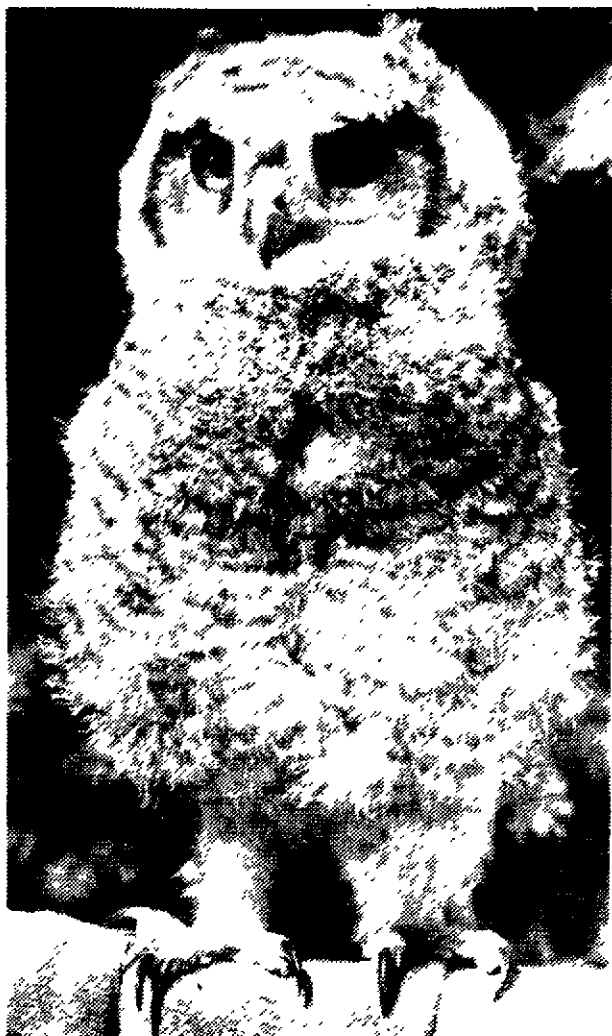

Our talons, or claws, represent much of our power — in fact, Great Horned Owls have been known to force Bald Eagles from their nests. Although I am just one foot in height, I will double in size and be about two feet and my wings will have a five-foot span when I reach adulthood.

Although we Great Horned Owls prefer to live in wooded areas where we can perch in the trees, we are found in all types of habitats, even deserts, throughout South, North, and Central America. And our chosen homes, or habitats as they are more frequently called, often determine our coloring.

My relatives in the deserts are lighter in color, while those who live in wooded areas have a mottled gray plumage, enabling them to blend with their environments.

Our coloring, or camouflage, makes it that much easier for us to be excellent hunters. Being birds of prey, our diets consist of small mammals, including mice, rabbits, hares, and squirrels, and, on occasion, a pheasant or two.

It often is difficult to find those animals each and every day, so we have inborn capacities for fasting. In fact, my friends here at the zoo, who feed me raw meat four times a day, see to it that I am fasted one day a week so I won't become a fat, lazy, old owl.

Simon . . . the Great Horned Owl, sports his favorite wise expression.

Contrary to popular belief, we are not night hunters, but prefer to hunt at dawn or dusk when our prey is bedded down for the night and, therefore, in its most inactive state.

When we consume those feathered and furry creatures, we don't digest the bones, fur, or feathers, but rather gather them in our crops, small pouches which are organs of digestion. The crops make the indigestibles into pellets which we discard a day or so later.

I already told you that we prefer to hunt at dawn or dusk and, because of the stillness that falls upon the land during dark, we must be very quiet on our searches for food.

Mother Nature has looked after that very minute detail, equipping us with down-fringed wings which decrease the noise created by our wings flapping in the wind and permit us to fly very quietly.

Another hunting aid bestowed on us by nature is the ability to turn our heads completely around. You see, during hours of darkness, we often hear an animal before we see it, so we just turn our heads to find the direction of the sound.

That ability is all the more necessary since we have binocular vision, similar to that of you humans, and that lessens our field of vision compared to that of the Hawk or Eagle who have eyes on the sides of their heads.

We Great Horned Owls prefer to hunt, and even live alone, with the exception of the spring mating season when we begin clacking our beaks and looking for females. The females lay three to five perfectly white, perfectly round eggs which then are hatched within 30 to 33 days.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old married woman, and my problem is one I've had all my life. I can't get along with my mother.

I married last year and fortunately moved to another state so I see my mother infrequently, but it's a very upsetting ordeal when I do. She always has picked on me and criticized me, and she still treats me like a two-year-old. However, she adores my husband, and he can do no wrong.

When mother comes to visit us she criticizes my apartment, my cooking, and even the way I dress. I try so hard to control myself and never answer her back because I don't want to be disrespectful. It's a terrible strain on me. She still says (in front of others): "Sit up straight! Don't talk so fast! Quit fussing with your hair!" I feel like a kid in nursery school instead of a grown woman.

My husband says: "Pay no attention to her," but it's not that easy. When I knew she was coming last time I talked to my doctor and asked him to give me something to help me relax. He said it was time I grew up and demanded to be treated as an adult, and if mother refused, I should tell her to stay home until she can.

I hate to do that because I love my father and he would suffer. What now?

BUNDLE OF NERVES

DEAR BUNDLE: Your doctor gave you excellent advice. You can demand to be treated as an adult without being disrespectful, and until you do, you can expect to be treated as an incompetent, awkward adolescent.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very complicated problem. I am getting married to a fellow named Peter Johnson. My parents are divorced and my father, whose name is James Von, is paying for my wedding (He has not remarried.)

My mother remarried two years ago to Paul Johnson, who is Peter's father. Peter's mother has not remarried.

After talking to two wedding consultants, I was advised to word my wedding invitations this way:

"Mrs. Paul Johnson and Mr. James Von invite you to join with them in celebrating the marriage of their daughter Miss Susan Von to Mr. Peter Johnson."

That is the way I had them engraved. Now Peter's mother is saying that SHE is Mrs. Paul Johnson, and if the invitations are sent out as they are now engraved, she will not attend our wedding — nor will anyone from her side come.

Any help you can give me will be deeply appreciated.

SUSAN VON
DEAR SUSAN: Peter's mother is wrong. Her name is now "Mrs. (Maiden Name) Johnson" — and your mother is Mrs. Paul Johnson. It's as simple as that. And if you can't convince her and she refuses to attend your wedding, tell her you'll miss her.

DEAR ABBY: You've made references to May-December marriages, but you have never given any advice with regard to them. You should, and it should be one word. DON'T!

I have witnessed four, including my own, and all of them have been very unsatisfactory. Especially for the younger partner. Older husbands make poor fathers. Children make them nervous, and they are too tired to go anywhere with their young wives, and all too soon they are inadequate lovers.

A young woman is flattered to be pursued by a dashing, sophisticated "older" swain. But after they are married, he becomes a dull old man. When she is 22 and he is 36, the age difference doesn't show much, but when she is 35 and he is 49, things start to go downhill for her.

I wish someone would have wised me up. Until a woman has lived in such a marriage, she has no idea how many problems arise.

SHORT-CHANGED IN KANSAS

DEAR SHORT: I rarely give advice with regard to marriages and age because one's condition is far more important than his age. Some men of 65 are in much better shape than some men of 30. While youth is prized, it's no assurance of vim, vigor, and virility.

Brownville Has 'Fiddlers To Flea Market' Events

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Who has not, at one time or another, voiced the oft-heard complaint — there's just nothing to do in Nebraska? True, the state is rather short on ski slopes, sea shores, and mountain retreats. However those who have a little imagination, a road map and a knowledge of "what's happening" should have little trouble finding interesting places to visit, especially during the summer months.

Take the village of Brownville for example. Located on Highway 136, eight miles east of Auburn, this historic riverboat town literally bustles with activity from late May through October.

The events that take place in Brownville are many and diverse, ranging from the Annual Flea Market and Muzzle Loader's Contest on Memorial Day weekend to the Old Fiddlers' and Country Music Contest held during the month of August.

During these and many other Brownville festivals, the town's minuscule population of 174 grows temporarily into the thousands, as people from all over the Midwest arrive to take part in the fun.

Two Organizations
Two very active organizations — the Brownville Historical Society and the Brownville Fine Arts Association (BFAA) — are responsible for planning and coordinating the events.

In addition, the Historical Society maintains a museum and the famous Carson House. Both are open every weekend during the summer. The BFAA also — operates the Carriage House Art Gallery which features the work of many Midwestern artists. It is open daily with the exception of Mondays. This year, the BFAA, which is the younger of the two organizations, has planned a full schedule of events during the next few months.

Founded in 1971 for the purpose of expanding cultural activities in Brownville, the Association pursues its goal through the sponsorship of numerous seminars, workshops, festivals, art exhibits, concerts and Fine Arts Days.

Weaver's Workshop
This summer's expanded schedule of events will include a series of four workshops to be held during the month of June. The first of these, Weavers' Workshop, will take place Saturday, June 9. Mrs. Hale McCown of Lincoln, who has exhibited her craft widely in the Midwest, will conduct the class.

Participants will study techniques in off-loom weaving, and the use of frame looms, rods and found materials. Simple, creative projects will be suggested for the beginner, and those who are more experienced will learn techniques that will enable them to expand and develop their skills and creativity.

Poetry Seminar
Also scheduled for June 9 is a Poetry Seminar led by Greg Kuzma, a member of the University of Nebraska Department of English. Kuzma serves as contributing editor for the "Prairie Schooner," and, in addition to having published several books, his poetry has appeared in many national magazines including "The New Yorker" and "The Nation."

During the morning Kuzma will read a number of selections from his own work. Then he will conduct a question and answer session. Later in the day, a discussion of poems submitted by participants and of current trends in contemporary poetry and magazines will be held.

Those interested in taking part in the seminar are asked to submit a poem to Mr. Kuzma, 118 So. Boswell in Crete, prior to June 1.

Creative Writing
On Saturday, June 16, a

Creative Writing Workshop will take place in Brownville. Author and former professor of English at UNO, Marion Marsh Brown, will be in charge of the session.

The workshop is intended to stimulate creativity in writing, and to channel such work into satisfying channels. In addition, Ms. Brown will offer guidance in methods and techniques of researching, writing, manuscript preparation and marketing.

Creative Silversmith
A Creative Silversmith Workshop will also be held on June 16, under the instruction of Wayne Selsor of Bellevue and Kern Wisman of Brownville. Selsor currently is a member of the Creighton Fine Arts Faculty. He also teaches courses at UNO and Joslyn. Wisman, a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University, serves as curator of the BFAA-sponsored Carriage House Art Gallery in Brownville.

The workshop will be devoted to the study of the techniques of forming, filing, soldering and fusing, as well as processes used for finishing and polishing silver jewelry. Simple projects in bent and forged silver will be suggested for beginners.

Folklife Festival
Craftsmen and women from

OLD HOME . . . located on Main St. will house music students throughout the Midwest will exhibit their work at the Folklife Festival which will take place in Brownville Saturday and Sunday, June 23 and 24. A variety of seldom-practiced crafts such as spinning, quilting and clock-making will be demonstrated in exhibits which will be set up at various locations in the town. Mrs. Donald Fletcher of Elkhorn is in charge of the event.

In conjunction with the festival, the Brownville Builders Award Ceremony and reception will take place on Sunday afternoon, June 24. Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon will present awards to a number of individuals who have contributed to the development of BFAA programs.

Art Exhibit
An Invitational Art Exhibit has been scheduled to take place Sunday, July 1, at the Carriage House Art Gallery. A committee appointed by the gallery curator and the BFAA president will select the artists to be represented in the event.

Summer Music Festival
The Brownville Summer Music Festival which was begun in 1972 as a two-week music study course for Nebraska high school students, has been expanded to include two, two-week sessions this summer. Mrs. John Lauber of the Nebraska Wesleyan University Department of Music is in charge of the Festival which will begin Sunday, July 15.

Eighty students are expected to register for the Festival. And a number of scholarships are available. Participants will devote seven to eight hours each day to their musical studies, and a number of programs will take place during the evenings.

Fine Arts Day
The annual Fine Arts Day will also be held July 15 and will feature an extensive display of arts and crafts. Mrs. Gene Cederdahl of Lincoln is in charge of the event.

Concerts
A series of concerts, to be performed by a variety of artists, will be held throughout the season with the final program to be given by the Omaha Symphony Orchestra on Sunday, Oct. 14.

Chit Chat with Roxi

Teenagers have problems as do all people and whether that teenager is a girl or a boy makes no difference in the matter of worrisome questions. Talk your problems over with Roxi — Write to her in care of the Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Roxi:
My girlfriend is going away for the entire summer. For three whole months I won't get to see her at all. She says that since she'll be gone for a while that it would be a good time for us to find out if what we have is really good or not. In other words, get out and date other people. I don't want to date others. I just want her. Do you think that she's right or should I fight for what I think is right?

D. N.
Dear D N:
Summers are a strain on any relationship, especially if one party is leaving town. I would say what your girlfriend wishes to do is really for the best. She must have doubts or she wouldn't want to do this. She is really thinking of you in a sense because she'll find out her real feelings for you. It will give you both an opportunity to sort out your feelings and if your relationship is good it will withstand a summer break.

Dear Roxi:
How do you tell your mother nicely to butt out? My mother has been bugging me for the longest time about asking out a daughter of her friend. I don't ask that many girls out, primarily because I don't feel I'm ready for any kind of a relationship with a girl. I'd prefer to wait until I'm ready but my mother can't seem to understand that. I just want to be left alone, but how do you get that across to a mother who sees only that her son doesn't have a girlfriend?

Mike
Dear Mike:
Mothers want their children to be happy and sometimes they confuse what they want, for what their children want. Boys tend to mature later than girls, thus girls are ready for relationships much sooner than boys. It is perfectly natural that you may be ready for other things, and not be ready for girls. Explain this to your mother and ask her to look at your side of it, too. Tell her you appreciate her help and her interest in you, but as far as girls are concerned that's your bag, not hers.

Opening lead-jack of hearts.
The subject of probabilities presents a giant mental hazard to many players, but, despite that, let's consider how declarer weighs his chances in this hand. Assume you're in three notrump and West leads a heart. To make the contract you must score at least four club tricks, so you naturally win the heart with the ace to preserve dummy's king as a later entry. If you now cash the A-Q of clubs and cross to the king of hearts, hoping to win five club tricks, you finish down one when you score only three club tricks.

This is unlucky — but not astonishing — for the probability of finding the clubs divided satisfactorily on this method of play is only 54 per cent. There was a 36 per cent chance of a 3-3 division plus an 18 per cent chance of finding either defender with the singleton or doubleton jack.

But if, instead, you cash the ace and overtake the queen with the king (planning to play a third round of the suit), your chances of making the contract rise to 67 per cent.

This is largely because you retain not only the 36 per cent chance of a 3-3 break, but also because you make the hand whenever either opponent was dealt the J-x, 9-x, or singleton jack, which is another 31 per cent.

In the actual case, when East's nine falls on the king, you continue with the ten to force out one jack. In the process, dummy's 8-6 become established and you wind up with nine tricks.

It is true that if East had the doubleton jack or the clubs were divided 3-3, the suggested method of play would cost you an overtrick. However, you should be more than willing to risk a 30-point loss for the sake of elevating your chances from 54 per cent to 67 per cent.

Know Your Antiques

Chair designers of the eighteenth century were limited by the flexibility and strength of wood. By the nineteenth century, new types of chairs could be made because steel and iron added new capabilities.

Folding furniture was first made of wood. The Egyptians had folding chairs in their tombs. The famous Dante chair was made in Italy of crossed wooden supports during the sixteenth century.

Eighteenth-century Dutch folding chair beds and other types of collapsible chairs also were made. Most of them were clumsy in design because of the mechanical requirements that opened and closed the chair.

When metal became available for furniture in about 1830, designers had new opportunities. Machine made parts and complicated engineering made the novelty chairs work. The appearance often was quite odd. An 1860 American chair made of iron was supported by an iron spring. The famous Peter Cooper rocker of bent wrought iron was designed. Adjustable reclining chairs like barbers chairs were popular by 1865. Even bouncing health chairs were made.

Swivel armchairs, tilting chairs, and platform rockers all took advantage of the use of machine worked metal and wood to make a chair that could do something. It had been an impossibility in earlier days.

Q — How can I clean and condition an old wooden mixing bowl so I can use it as a wall decoration. Should it be bleached?

A — How you treat antiques for decorative purposes is always a personal choice. Remember that too much cleaning will destroy the value to the serious collector. Wash the bowl with soap and water and let it dry thoroughly. If it is not to be used again you could varnish it with clear varnish. Do not bleach or sand the bowl. This will remove all of the signs of age and the patina of the wood. If you prefer a new looking bowl, buy a new bowl and hang it on the wall.

Q — Dogs are pictured playing poker at a table in an old ad I recently purchased. The dogs are dressed like human beings with eye glasses, pipes, and even ties. When was this type of picture popular?

A — You probably own a print by Cassius Marcellus Coolidge of Rochester, N.Y. He started painting pictures of dogs in human settings about 1873. The pictures were popular as part of cigar ads, posters, prints, and calendars. They later appeared on playing cards. Dogs were shown gambling, dancing, at the ball game and even on the commuter train.

We mentioned that the Regina Music Box could be dated by the number on the plate. Somehow an extra "O" entered the list and this resulted in some confusion. It is possible to date the boxes from the numbers because number 4,001 was made in 1894, number 25,000 in 1898, number 50,000 in 1902 and number 70,000 in 1904.

Q — I have an amber colored U.S. Grant plate. Grant is pictured in the center with the words "Born April 27, 1822, Died July 23, 1885". The edges have lacy leaves with the words "Let us Have Peace." When was it made?

A — The U.S. Grant peace plates were made about 1885 in a variety of colors by Adams and Company of Pittsburgh. There have been some recent reproductions made.

'Navy That Was' Now In Mothballs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It is the Navy that was, a silent fleet of 123 ships anchored in the back channel of the Philadelphia Naval Base.

The ships, which once steamed the seas majestically, bob softly in the water of the Delaware River as the newer Navy makes waves passing by.

Their boilers are empty, their engines sealed, their guns dismantled. No sailors swab the decks or polish the brass. No officers man the bridge.

This is a fleet in "mothballs." Its return to action some day is possible, but highly unlikely.

Capt. George W. Stroud, commander of the Naval Inactive Ship Maintenance Facility, now has 50 of the 12 ships in some stage of disposal.

"They are excess to Navy needs," he said. "It is no longer economical to keep them inactive."

Some are headed for the scrap heap, some for target practice in the Atlantic, and a few will be turned over to the states, cities and organizations for use as memorials and museums.

The Philadelphia base is the largest mothball facility in the nation. Other combat and support ships are stored at Norfolk, Va.; San Diego, Calif.; Vallejo, Calif.; Bremerton, Wash.; New York City, and Boston.

At the peak of ship storage the Navy had more than 1,200 vessels in mothball fleets. Now there are less than 400.

At Philadelphia, lined row after row and dressed in faded but traditional Navy gray, are two battleships, the Iowa and Wisconsin, and the aircraft carrier Antietam. There also are seven submarines, six cruisers, 60 destroyer types and 47 assorted vessels such as tugs, water barges, assault cargo ships, LSTs, minesweepers and fuel carriers.

It cost a total of $1.4 billion to build them.

The mothballing process, which takes about three months, consists of sealing all sea valves, installing a dehumidification system that circulates air at 30 degrees to keep the interior dry and rust free, and placing electric current in the water to prevent hull erosion. Each inactive ship is equipped with automatic fire and flood alarm systems.

Stroud's "flagship" is the deactivated destroyer tender USS Everglades. From it he commands 250 men, including 30 civilians, on a $3.5 million annual budget.

Nix Talks

PARIS (AP) — President Georges Pompidou of France and Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain agreed Tuesday that it is premature to talk about a summit meeting of North Atlantic leaders.

Pompidou and Heath ended two days of talks here. They spent some of their time talking about a U.S. call for a new Atlantic Charter to build up the partnership among Western nations and Japan. Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser, made the proposal in a speech April 23.

The idea of an Atlantic summit emerged from talks between Nixon and Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany early this month in Washington.

British sources reported that Heath and Pompidou considered it more important now to clear up fuzzy areas of issues to be discussed among Western nations than to talk about a summit.

The main areas to be cleared up were said to be related to defense, trade and monetary matters.

French sources said Pompidou will ask Nixon to clarify parts of Kissinger's April statement when the two presidents meet in Iceland starting May 31.

Near Accord Reached On East-West Contacts

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Eastern and Western nations preparing for a European security conference have reached virtual agreement on the issue of widening human contacts among the countries, diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

The issue had been a major one before the 34-nation conference could begin.

The sources reporting the draft agreement — reached in an informal meeting of the United States, the Soviet Union and an undisclosed number of other countries — said formal endorsement would have to wait until nations not at the meeting have their say.

The draft agreement calls for freer movement and contacts among persons of different countries. It calls for more family reunification, increased travel and more meetings among young people.

The diplomatic sources indicated that although there were some vague definitions about some areas of contacts, the results are satisfactory to the Western countries. The West has demanded clear indications that a widening of international contacts would apply on an individual level.

Karate Blow Fatal

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—An Elm Creek man died Tuesday evening shortly after he was injured during a karate sparring match in Kearney.

Police said Roy Barnes, 24, was injured while sparring with Wayne Cross, instructor and owner of the school. Barnes was taken to a Kearney hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Deputy Buffalo County Atty. Gary Hogg said investigation was not complete, but that the death appeared to have been accidental.

Saigon Vows To Block Probe

. . . Viet Cong Say U.S. Bombing South

Saigon (UPI) — South Vietnam threatened Tuesday to block a proposed investigation by the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) into Viet Cong charges that U.S. planes bombed inside South Vietnam last month.

The Saigon government said the ICCS should first investigate cease-fire violation charges it made against the Viet Cong two months ago. It called the Viet Cong charges of U.S. bombing "slandorous."

At the regular meeting of the two-party Joint Military Commission (JMC), South Vietnam also suggested a new plan to enforce the cease-fire. The communists immediately rejected it, saying the seven-point Saigon program was an effort to "belittle" their own plan presented last week.

The JMC is responsible for enforcing the cease-fire under terms of the Paris peace treaty.

The communists charged on May 12 that B52 bombers first hit targets inside South Vietnam just across the Cambodian border in April. They said that U.S. fighter-bombers later bombed targets between May 2 and May 15. It demanded an ICCS investigation and the international truce commission agreed.

The United States denied the Viet Cong charges, but said it would welcome an investigation. The U.S. Embassy in Saigon confirmed that U.S. planes have made reconnaissance flights over South Vietnam.

A South Vietnamese government spokesman said Tuesday Saigon would not cooperate until the ICCS agrees to carry out an investigation of an alleged Viet Cong violation that Saigon requested two months ago.

"The communists have made a slanderous accusation that American aircraft were bombing communist targets within South Vietnam," the Saigon spokesman said.

Ex- Deputy Douglas Co. Attorney Pleads Guilty

Omaha (AP) — A former deputy Douglas County attorney, Thomas Ryder, pleaded guilty Monday to forging an indorsement on a check.

District Judge John Burke deferred sentencing pending the customary background investigation by the Adult Probation Office. Ryder was released on a $500 bond.

Ryder was fired by County Attorney Donald Knowles May 4 after it became known the deputy had cashed a check for $473 made out to another person.

day. Ryder had worked for Knowles for nearly 10 years.

Of his decision to file the criminal charge, Knowles said, "This is the hardest decision I've had to make in all the years I've been in office."

Ryder was being treated at the Epilepsy Care Center May 4 and Knowles deferred action until he was released. Ryder was released from the center Saturday.

Knowles said earlier that Ryder apparently suffered a nervous breakdown.

Newsfilms On U.S. TV

New York (UPI) — An agreement in principle to establish an electronic television news distribution system in the United States was announced Tuesday by United Press International, British Independent Television News and Paramount Pictures Corporation.

The announcement, made jointly by Paramount Pictures and UPITN, the pioneer TV newsfilm service, said seven-day electronic news feeds would start June 4.

The agreement will bring Paramount Pictures into the world newsfilm partnership of UPI and ITN whose syndicated film services were merged in 1967 under the name of UPITN. It marks a return into newsfilm for Paramount, which produced the "Eyes and Ears of the World" for theaters from 1927 to 1957.

News coverage operations will be directed by UPI and ITN. The service is received by 98 major networks and stations in 66 countries throughout the world.

The new service will start with a one-hour coast-to-coast feed each evening and will be combined with a special eight-hour script and advisory wire for the convenience of subscribing stations.

Burton Reinhardt, UPITN executive vice president and general manager, said all lines have been ordered and additional camera crews and other personnel are being hired for the expanded service.

"We are particularly pleased to have obtained the services of Ed Turner, former group vice president and news director of the Metromedia television stations who will serve in the capacity of news director," Reinhardt said.

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday approved a request by Sheriff Merle Karnopp to add two deputies and one clerk typist to his staff because of increased workload.

In a letter to the board, Karnopp explained that because of the new Special Services Division, one of his patrolmen was promoted to sergeant in charge of that division and another deputy is needed to handle the increased service of papers due to the Small Claims Court which began in January.

In other business, the board approved a grant application for federal funds to send a member of the public defenders' office staff to attend a Public Defender's School in Chicago this summer.

In other action, the board: —Deferred action on an application of William D. McDonald for a bottle club license until zoning problems are worked out. —Approved an application of B&B Productions Inc. for an amusement license.

—Approved an application for subdivision permit sought by George W. Soucek for one mile west and one mile south of Agnew.

—Approved amusement licenses for Lee's Inc. and Los Sanchez. —Referred to the planning department a request for change of zone sought by Gary Gross.

—Approved a change order for Lancaster Manor to use tile instead of carpeting.

Authoress Installed In Fame Hall

Bess Streeter Aldrich Tuesday became the seventh Nebraskan to be elected to the state's Hall of Fame for the 160 short stories and 14 books, including seven full-length novels, she wrote.

Approximately 300 people gathered in the Capitol's Hall of Fame to witness the unveiling of a bust of the author famous for her portrayal of the settlers who first broke Nebraska's prairie sod with a plow.

In accepting the bust on behalf of the state, Gov. J. James Exon said Nebraskans could "indeed be proud of that great and gallant lady."

Mrs. Aldrich was born in Cedar Falls, Iowa, in 1881. She moved to Elmwood, Neb., in 1909, with her husband and later in 1946 to Lincoln.

Her first novel, "The Rim of the Prairie," was published in 1915 and was followed in 1928 by at many regard as her best work, "A Lantern in Her Hand." She died in 1954.

Miss Aldrich's name thus joins George Norris, Willa Cather, Gen. John Pershing, Father Flanagan, William F. Cody and William Jennings Bryan in the Hall of Fame.

Present for the unveiling were Mrs. Mary Aldrich Beechner of Lincoln, Hermann A. Becker of Omaha, the sculptor, and Sen. Roland Luedtke.

The Nebraska chapter was active in preparing LB86, the Appraisers Licensing Act, enacted by the current Legislature. The bill becomes law Jan. 1, 1974. Nebraska is the first state to pass such an act.

FBI Arrests Lincoln Man

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents have arrested a 22-year-old Lincoln man in Boulder, Colorado in connection with the alleged embezzlement of $30,000 from the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Lincoln.

A spokesman at the Denver FBI office said John Henry Fischer is being held in the Denver County Jail pending extradition on the charges. He was arrested late Monday afternoon.

The FBI spokesman said Fischer was arrested on a federal warrant issued in Lincoln in connection with an incident in which Fischer, employed as a "systems analyst," at First Federal, cashed a cashier's check for $30,000 made out to himself.

The warrant was issued on May 15.

Patrol Arrests State Senator Loren Schmidt

State Sen. Loren C. Schmidt of David City has been arrested by the State Patrol on a charge of speeding, according to a complaint filed Tuesday in Lincoln Municipal Court.

The Legislature launches a four-day countdown toward adjournment Wednesday with major school aid and budget measures still awaiting final action.

The biggest bills are not scheduled for an ultimate decision until Friday, but senators are in position to take a final reading vote on 30 or more pending proposals Wednesday.

Among them are a resolution urging the Congress to propose a U.S. constitutional amendment negating the Supreme Court's abortion decision and a bill establishing an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska.

Holed up on final reading is the long-stalled proposal to increase payments for aid to dependent children. Senators thus far have steadfastly refused to submit that $3.3 million (in state tax funds) measure to a vote this year.

Awaiting action at second stage floor consideration are four revenue bills, some of which face major amendatory action. They conceivably could reach final reading on the last scheduled day of the 1973 session June 1.

Proposed amendments include a 1974 reduction in the personal income tax rate from 15% to 13%, reinstitution of the intangible property tax, establishment of a state sales tax on services, and an increase in the premium tax on domestic insurance policies.

The legislative schedule always subject to change shows five bills slated for final reading on Thursday and more than 30 on Friday.

All bills enacted by the end of the week will have an opportunity to escape the veto of Gov. J. James Exon since the Legislature will return for its final day June 1 after the time limit for gubernatorial action on the bills has expired.

Thirty votes would be required to override any gubernatorial objections.

If the revenue bills reach final reading June 1, Exon will be able to dispose of them as he wishes after senators have gone home for good.

Friday's list apparently will include the $100 million school aid measure which mandates 50% state support for local schools by 1975-76; the $20 million school aid boost for 1973-74, and a $45.8 million capital construction package, which includes $21.2 million in 1973-74 spending.

Other major bills included in Friday's listing are a supplemental appropriations measure, a deficit appropriations proposal, the bill realigning technical community college areas, a proposal to create a new Department of Corrections, and a number of liquor election and revenue measures.

Guard Gets Fuel, But Camp Still In Doubt

By United Press International
Nebraska's 3,000 National Guardsmen may not go to summer camp at Ft. Carson, Colo., this year if there's a chance that fuel savings realized by staying home would ease the fuel shortage, it was learned Tuesday.

"I'm perfectly willing to give up my gas if it will help somebody else," said State Adj. Gen. Francis Winner in an interview.

Earlier, it was reported the 67th Infantry Brigade may not be making its annual summer training trek to Ft. Carson June 7-24 because of a lack of fuel.

Needed for the training session are 70,000 gallons of gasoline, 45,000 gallons of diesel fuel and 20,000 gallons of aircraft fuel.

But Winner said since the initial scramble, fuel supplies have been assured by Ft. Carson officials.

The question now is, he said, what would happen to the fuel if Nebraska declined its training allocation?

Winner said the answer to that question should surface soon and in the meantime he has arranged a meeting with Gov. J.J. Exon for Wednesday to discuss the situation.

Exon, as commander in chief, has the final say on summer training plans.

Winner, however, said he didn't think he would recommend that the governor cancel the trip unless it could be assured that the fuel would be put to good use outside the military. Specifically, he said he thought the farmers should benefit if anyone does.

"If it is just going to go to some other (military) unit to burn up, then we might as well put it to good use in our own training program and go to Ft. Carson," Winner said.

In anticipating the possibility that the training session in Colorado might be canceled, the adjutant general said alternative plans for a training program completely within Nebraska's boundaries have been filed with officials in Washington.

Approval of plans is needed from that quarter, Winner said, in order for the guardsmen to get paid for their training time.

As to the quality of a training program inside Nebraska, the official conceded it probably wouldn't be as good.

"Our training would suffer in at least some areas," Winner said. "But overall, I think we could come up with a good training program here."

Spelling Error Costs $15,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mistake was discovered when stamps began coming off the press in honor of A. P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of America. His first name was misspelled "Amedeo" instead of "Amadeo."

The stamp designer spelled the name the Italian way, a Postal Service spokesman explained. "The corrected stamps currently are being reprinted at an estimated cost of $15,000."

The mixup need never have occurred, the spokesman added. Giannini rarely used his first name, preferring only initials.

Senate Group OKs 'Burdick Amendment'

By The Associated Press
A House-Senate Conference Committee in Washington Tuesday voted its approval of the so-called "Burdick Amendment," a highway funding proposal which Nebraska interests have favored.

Word of the committee action reached the office of Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., in Washington.

The amendment, contained in a Senate version of the Federal Highway Act of 1973, provides that once a state has completed its interstate highway, it will continue to receive a portion of interstate highway funds.

An aide to Rep. Thone said that in Nebraska's case, the receipt of one-half of one per cent of the interstate funds will mean about $16 million a year.

Because Nebraska is expected to be one of the first few states completing their interstate highway, it would be one of the first to profit from the Burdick Amendment, named for Sen. Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D. The benefits to Nebraska could be expected to be realized during fiscal 1976, the year beginning July 1, 1975.

Elm Creek Bank OKd As A Depositing Bank

Kearney (AP) — The Buffalo County Board Tuesday recognized the new First National Bank of Elm Creek as a depositing bank.

The new bank opened Saturday at Elm Creek after the former Elm Creek State Bank was declared insolvent by the State Banking Department.

Buffalo County Treasurer M. L. Wimberley said county funds

Wimberley said the bank had pledged securities for more than the amount on deposit.

A hearing is scheduled for June 1 in the suit by the Elm Creek State Bank against the banking department. Ron Bycroft, principal stockholder and board chairman, is asking the court to enjoin the banking department from proceeding further and is asking the court to declare the bank solvent.

Wimberley said he was told by a spokesman for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation that the county would not lose interest on its money that was on deposit.

Services Set For Earl Buck; Store Founder

Omaha (UPI) — Funeral services will be held in Omaha Wednesday for Earl Kelly Buck, who opened a shoe store in Waterloo, Iowa, in 1913 and built it into a chain known as Buck's Booteries.

Mr. Buck, 86, died in Omaha Sunday after a long illness.

He had sold interest in his stores to individual managers, but had retained ownership of his downtown Omaha shoe store at the time of his death.

Mr. Buck is survived by his widow, a son and two grandchildren.

Proposal Would Lead To National Guard Owning Fort Omaha

WASHINGTON (AP)—Representatives of the Nebraska National Guard met Tuesday with some members of the Nebraska congressional delegation to discuss the future of Fort Omaha.

Representatives met with U.S. Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis, and an aide to Rep. John Y. McCollister.

Nebraska Civil Defense Director Burl Johnson and National Guard engineer Larry Hennings outlined a long-range proposal aimed ultimately at National Guard ownership of Fort Omaha.

Dismissal Motion Overruled; Deputy Allowed To Prosecute

NORFOLK, (AP) — District Court Judge Eugene McFadden Tuesday overruled a motion which sought dismissal of charges against two defendants on grounds that the Deputy County Atty. had no right to prosecute.

The motion argued that Deputy County Atty. Richard Spittler could not prosecute because there could be no deputy county attorney while there was no official county attorney.

The office of county attorney has been vacant since Vincent Kirby resigned the post Jan. 31. County officials had Spittler retain the deputy title because in that capacity he was eligible for a pay raise after he took over what had been Kirby's duties in addition to his own. If Spittler had taken the county attorney's title, he could not have had the same pay increase, it was reported.

The two defendants, Dan Wirth, 22 and Arnold Volbrecht, are charged with destruction of property. They are charged in connection with an incident in which vehicles on several car lots were fired at with rifles and shotguns.

Johnson said the Guard did not seek to "upset" any plans the Navy has for Fort Omaha, but said if the site becomes available, the Guard would like to own and manage the facilities.

In the long run, Johnson said, the move would involve relocating to Omaha some present facilities at Camp Ashland and others in Lincoln. It would involve transfer of some 50 to 60 employees, Johnson said.

Hruska and Curtis were described as "cautious" about the proposal, saying they had no desire to give up attempts to have the Navy consolidate some facilities at the Fort Omaha site.

Highway Builders Worried

Omaha (AP) — An industry official said the fuel shortage and fuel prices are causing concern among contractors involved in heavy highway construction.

Philip Cain of Omaha, president of the Nebraska chapter of the Associated General Contractors of America (AGCA), said Nebraska members who bid last year on state highway jobs to be undertaken this year will seek some contract adjustments because of soaring fuel costs.

Cain is vice president of the Dugdale Construction Co. of Omaha. He echoed N. L. Teer Jr., a North Carolina contractor and president of the AGCA, who was quoted as saying: "Hundreds of construction firms can get no firm commitments on fuel for projects slated to begin in 30 to 90 days."

Cain said Nebraska's heavy highway contractors have no signed contracts guaranteeing fuel delivery, although suppliers say they will try to maintain last year's allotments.

Cain estimated Nebraska contractors are paying 25% to 30% more for gasoline and from 40% to 66% more for No. 2 diesel fuel this year than they did in 1972.

Cain said the state AGCA's liaison committee is compiling information and hopefully within two weeks will be ready to seek some relief through escalation clauses on contracts signed with the State Roads Dept. last year.

Fuel Pinch Outlined For Wheatmen

OGALLALA, Neb. (AP)—Directors of the Nebraska-Wyoming Wheatgrowers Association heard the good and the bad of the fuel situation at a board meeting in Ogallala.

Outlining the situation was C. G. Rush of Kansas City, a representative of Farm Land Industries. Farm Land is said to provide 35 per cent of the fuel used by Nebraska farmers.

Rush said some reasons for the fuel crisis include increased sales of new cars, emission controls on autos and the fact that 85 per cent of new cars have air conditioning.

Rush said $2.5 billion more was spent for gasoline in 1972 than in 1971. He mentioned also that no new refineries have been built in the United States in the last five years and two have shut down.

On the good side, Rush said the Exxon Co. is building a new refinery that will produce more than 14 million gallons of gasoline per day, and it will be completed by 1976.

He said priorities for a voluntary allocation program are topped by agriculture, with food processing and distribution second in line.

Rush said also that the Defense Department is being asked to cut back by 20 per cent in its use of fuel.

As to prospects, Rush said there are coal reserves for 100 years, oil reserves for 65 years, natural gas reserves for 50 years and uranium reserves for 25 years.

Confirmation Hearing Slated

The Legislature's Committee on Communications has scheduled a hearing Wednesday afternoon on confirmation of a new appointee to the State Motor Vehicle Industry Licensing Board.

Gov. J. James Exon informed the Legislature his first appointee to the position, Kenneth Hilton of Cambridge, has resigned. In Hilton's place, the governor nominated former Game Commission member Francis Hanna of Thedford.

The Committee on Communications held a public hearing recently on the Hilton appointment. Later, Sen. Ramey C. Whitney of Chappell, committee chairman, informed Exon there were doubts whether the committee would recommend confirmation of the appointment.

Bathroom Escape

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A convict convinced prison officials he had a terrible contagion and was taken to a hospital. His guards let him go to the bathroom alone. He lowered himself out of the bathroom window with a rope and escaped. The guards waited outside the toilet for three hours, then became suspicious and investigated.

Beatrice Council Pay Hike Gets 2nd-Round Okay

By Dean Terrill
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Beatrice — A proposal to double the salaries of the City Council (and mayor) sparked another lively discussion here Monday night before gaining second-round council approval.

With a 5-3 vote, the measure appears headed toward passage on a final showdown June 4. The drafted ordinance would hike annual salaries of councilmen from $1,000 to $2,000 and the mayor from $2,400 to $4,800, both effective after the next election one year hence.

Monday's arguments came following the vote when Councilman Allen Grell proposed that the matter be discussed in an executive session. Larry Probst, one of those opposing, shot back that he had "nothing to hide."

and the argument was soon in full swing. Mayor Bob Sargent said there has been "much misunderstanding" of the issue, particularly over the fact that any raises would have to wait until the next terms of office. He also pointed out recent large increases for congressmen.

"Worth . . . More"
"If the councilmen and the mayor here do their real duty, they're worth a lot more than $1,000 and $2,400," he insisted.

Former Mayor Ray Elwood, now a county supervisor, then jumped in with a reminder that federal guidelines for increases are only 6 to 7%. When he asked Sargent why he had run for office, the Mayor fired back: "Because I wanted to beat you."

Elwood acknowledged that his supervisor position pays $4,500.

Sargent noted that by "working diligently," he and the council have reduced tax levies for two years straight. This brought a retort from observer Ervin Lechner that the reductions were in fact primarily due to higher property valuations.

Lechner questioned a previous contention by Dr. S. H. Shuck, the councilman introducing the proposal, that council service is more demanding now. Lechner argued that "the only new problem is revenue sharing."

Funds Now on Hand
On another matter, the council tentatively approved a breakdown of uses for $300,000 in revenue sharing funds now on hand. The largest portion, $125,000 would apply toward a reduction in the mill levy.

Since the matter had been discussed in previous budget sessions, it was routinely approved without dissent Monday.

Other apportionments: $50,000, industrial park; $25,000, sanitary landfill, $20,000, new fire truck, $25,000, river road paving; and $55,000, storm sewer.

Mention of the industrial park did trigger a comment from Elwood that a 320-acre site proposed by the Beatrice Industrial Development Corp. was unrealistic. He said Lincoln's industrial park was "only 75 acres and it's taken about 10 years to fill it up."

Board of Public Works manager Richard Billingsley again found himself at odds with the council, this time over the maintenance of 20 downtown litter receptacles. Greg Kuhnel of the Jaycees, which had given the receptacles to the city four years ago, said Billingsley had refused to continue maintaining them.

"If all these added jobs continue, we're going to have to get more people," defended the manager. "The board is not in the trash business and is not geared to doing maintenance on the receptacles."

One More Coat

Mayor Sargent said the Jaycees shouldn't be expected to maintain "what they have given as a gift."

LAST YEAR FOREST FIRES DESTROYED 200 TREES FASTER THAN YOU CAN READ THIS AD.

Unless you're a speed reader it should take you about 20 seconds to read this ad.

Which is about 5 words per second.
Forest fire in that same amount of time will have ravaged and burned over 200 trees.

Which is about 2 trees for every word you read.
Or by the time you finish this sentence 118 trees
And does the damage add up?

In a year's time that's over 420 million trees over 4 million acres burned and hundreds of thousands of animals left homeless.

Not to forget the ecological havoc forest fire will have wreaked where it passed.
And it's all such a senseless waste too.
Because with only a little time most man caused forest fires could be prevented.

An extra second to grind out a cigaret.

Another minute to pour more water on your fire scatter the coals, cover it with dirt.

A moment to refresh yourself on fire safety.

A few extra minutes can save years of growth.

Ladies Flop In Horror Biz

LONDON (AP) — This doubtless will provoke a hideous hue and convulsive cry from Women's Lib, but the frightening fact is that the fairer sex just can't hack it in the horror biz.

As monsters, ghouls, zombies and werewolves, they are a box-office graveyard.

"Countess Dracula" was a disappointment. We lost money on it, despite a marvelously macabre performance by Ingrid Pitt, lamented Michael Carreras, chairman and chief executive of Hammer Productions Ltd., which for the past two decades has had a global noose on the horror film industry.

Horror fans are a large and traditional audience. They don't like your fooling about with their legends or they get suspicious. Historically you see, there are no really great female horrors. As the sanguinary lady from Transylvania, Miss Pitt was every inch a vampress, right down to her crimsoned mezzos. But at the ticket window she never approached the monstrous popular appeal of Christopher Lee who with eyeballs dreadfully bulging has slaked his thirst at the jugulars of innumerable toothsome morsels in seven spectacularly successful Dracula spin-offs.

In Hammer's case of orror as the ogre works down at Elstree Studios are known in the local argot Count Dracula gives way on the sound stage in alternate years to Baron Frankenstein in the person of actor Peter Cushing now playing the role for the sixth time in "Frankenstein the Monster From Hell."

Between the two of them actors Lee and Cushing constitute a cadaverous repertoire company that has reaped Hammer films a box office bonanza in full color remakes of the Dracula and Frankenstein stories that had been molding since the heyday of Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi.

In his Soho office, surrounded by provocative posters of daringly disheveled damsels recoiling from the fangs of Hammer vampires chairman Carreras regretted that no actress had attained stardom in any of the company's more than 50 horror films.

True, Raquel Welch became an overnight hit in "One Million B.C." and Ursula Andress found international fame in Rider Haggard's "She," but these were adventure films, full of historical and prehistorical bökum, which the Hammer folk rush out every now and then to keep the censor off guard.

Carreras ran through his grisly catalogue of films involving females in search of a similarly instant sex symbol. "The Brides of Dracula" Kiss of the Vampire" Frankenstein Created Women The Godmother.

No ectoplasmic bombshell materialized.

There was a female gorgon he remembered the thing with all the snakes in its hair that did quite well for Barbara Shelley, but basically the female lead in a horror film tends to be the person in jeopardy the shrinking flower who must be rescued from Count Dracula or Baron Frankenstein.

Hammer's blood-curdling combination of sex and violence provides endless melodrama with the censors.

Actually, Carreras explained, the British censors like sex and they like violence, but they like them separately. Now we're having trouble with the American censors over Frankenstein the Monster From Hell. Something to do with squeamishness over the baron doing a brain transplant with a rusty saw.

Screen To Limit Vision

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new screen will be tested this summer to help the nation's drive-in movie theaters avoid legislation preventing X-rated films from being seen from streets outside the theaters.

The device would limit vision of movies to those sitting in their cars inside the drive-in.

Cities in several states, including Montana, Massachusetts and South Carolina, have approved or are considering laws which would curtail drive-in offerings, and theater executives fear the practice will spread.

"What could we do? Build a 30-foot fence around our drive-ins? That would not only cost a fortune, the ecologists would attack us for creating eyesores," said one executive.

The problem was viewed as a major one in the industry since the country's 4,500 drive-ins contribute 25 per cent of movie income.

The National Drive-in Committee of the National Association of Theater Owners (NATO) took the matter to the Research Center of the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers.

The new screen, which took a year to develop will be tested this summer at the Century Drive-in Theater near the Los Angeles International Airport.

Robert Selig, chairman of NATO's drive-in committee, explained.

Dr. Wilton Holm, director of the Research Center, and chief scientist Petro Vlahos came up with the concept for a containment screen made of nickel coated with chromium. The screen is made up of two-foot-square modules which are cast from dies by an electroforming process.

"The casting creates a series of lenticulations or bumps which control and turn the image inward. From outside the theater, the screen will look black."

The new screen was developed with $100,000 loaned by drive-in owners. The patents will be controlled by NATO or a new corporation, and the screens are estimated to cost between $15,000 and $20,000, plus installation.

"That's expensive," Selig admitted. "But when you put that expense against the endless legal costs of fighting legislation, it's not bad."

Burt Reynolds Seeks Privacy On His Ranch

JUPITER Fla. (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds doesn't want the world beating a path to his door. So he's posting "no trespassing" signs on his ranch, to discourage people from baring in uninvited and asking for a guided tour.

"I like to think I'm a pretty gregarious guy," said Reynolds, known as the nation's premier nude, male magazine model. "But right now I don't have a whole hell of a lot of choice in the matter. I've been working like a crazy man lately and my doctors say I'm going to be in trouble if I don't do some serious resting."

Allende Plans To Nationalize More Companies

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The leftist government of President Salvador Allende has announced plans to nationalize all foreign telecommunications companies operating in the country.

The plans announced by Interior Minister Gerardo Espinoza would affect Transradio, the Chilean branch of RCA, and properties of International Telephone and Telegraph.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Proper nutrition, chewing your food well and being aware of how your stomach works can make you feel much better many times over says the Nebraska Medical Association.

The walls of your stomach are muscular. Three layers of muscle form the stomach and are particularly important because this organ must break up the food you eat into tiny particles. Often, the stomach must grind up food which was not chewed thoroughly.

A stomach lining contains 35-400,000 glands. In the stomach, you not only have mucous glands, but tiny gastric glands which secrete digestive juices, hydrochloric acid and several enzymes.

One enzyme curdles milk. Another splits fats including those in cream and egg yolk. The hydrochloric acid combines with proteins to form a new chemical which combines with another enzyme to break foods into smaller units all to digest your intake of food.

It takes your stomach about three to five hours to change your food into a semifluid called chyme which permits digestion. Fluids pass through the stomach within minutes, as might be expected.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges you to take the muscular activity of the stomach into account when you consider stomach discomforts.

Since your stomach is normally acidic, too much alkali means your stomach will produce more acid which may complicate an ulcer condition or gall bladder problem. Even an inflamed appendix can give trouble in the region of the stomach. Emotional disturbances also affect your stomach.

THE BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA BY E. E. BENNETT, DIRECTOR OF SPECIAL BUSINESS SERVICES 353-317, May 18, 21, 23

Advisory Group Backs Votomatics

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The advisory committee to review proposals for voting methods for Lancaster County Tuesday night voted to recommend accepting a $155,233 bid by Computer Election Systems (CES) for their Votomatic machines.

The recommendation goes Wednesday to Lancaster County Election Commissioner W.H. (Bill) Davidson, who said he supports it, and will refer it for any action to the county commissioners.

CES had imposed a contract deadline of May 25, after which the cost for the machines would have increased.

No action by the county commissioners by the deadline will mean automatic acceptance of the CES bid.

The advisory committee also recommended that if the contract deadline is not an absolute consideration, a more comprehensive study of other punch card voting devices or other systems or both be made.

The county used CES machines in the Lincoln primary and general elections this year, on a trial basis.

Prior to reaching its recommendation, the committee heard a representative of Fidler & Chambers of Davenport, Iowa, present a bid of $132,000 for that firm's machines and services.

Despite the lower bid by Fidler & Chambers, the committee considered that.

— CES machines provided flawless voting in the last two elections.

— CES has a proven, successful operation, and will back up its bid with an established company, service, program and personnel.

— Fidler & Chambers has never conducted an election and is offering the same machines patented by CES.

— Fidler & Chambers has committed its present personnel to upcoming elections in Illinois, where it has sold machines and where elections will be held simultaneously with those in Lancaster County.

Further, Davidson maintained that the CES machines will pay for themselves "in short order." He said it costs "$35,000 per election just to man the polling booths."

With the voting machines allowing more rapid counting of ballots, Davidson said the county could possibly increase the size of the precincts, eliminating possibly 50 precincts.

That would save $8,000 for each election, he said. "There are untold savings that can be derived from a system" such as CES's.

Request Pleases City Officials

City officials have expressed surprise and pleasure that the U.S. Department of Transportation has included on its priority list funding for the bus terminal proposed in the City Services Building.

The $1.6 million grant from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) was included in a budget request to the House appropriations subcommittee for funding in the 1974-75 fiscal year.

This is the first time that UMTA has issued a list of its top priority projects before awarding the grants.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and City Atty. Dick Wood reported they have not yet received official word from UMTA officials of that move.

Wood pointed out that the city only has filed a preliminary application with UMTA for two-thirds federal funding of the bus terminal portion of the building, proposed for the block bounded by 11th and 12th, from N to O.

Wood said the city still has to submit a land acquisition relocation program to UMTA for approval before a public hearing can be held on the city's final application for funding.

That final application will not be submitted until the city receives a report from a consultant, but one has not yet been hired. The consultant will aid the architects in designing the structure and will advise local officials on the entire project, Wood said.

In addition to a bus terminal for the Lincoln Transportation System, the building would house a 1,000-car parking garage, retail space and possibly, low income housing for the elderly.

However, UMTA officials pointed out that just because a project has been placed on the priority list, that action does not guarantee the projects will be funded this year.

An UMTA official said, "This list represents applications, potential application and expected applications for fiscal '74."

If a project is not funded out of fiscal '74 funds, it will be carried over into the next fiscal year for funding.

Study Of Wounded Knee Urged By Presbyterians

Omaha. (AP) — The 185th United Presbyterian general Assembly Tuesday called for an immediate on-the-scene study of the Wounded Knee situation by the United States Senate's subcommittee on Indian affairs.

The assembly, meeting in Omaha, also urged that pressure be applied on the U.S. government "to grant justice and equality to Indian people and to honor its treaties with Indian tribes."

The action came in connection with the report of the assembly committee on combating racism, and followed a decision of the Assembly not to shut the door on possible legal aid funding in relation to the Wounded Knee incident.

A petition had sought to delay any such funding until after a church sponsored study could be made.

Another petition that would have given high priority "to making available legal aid in appropriate situations as needed by our native Americans" also failed. Delegates felt that existing guidelines for the fund's use are sufficient.

The committee report said, "We remind the General Assembly that there are many previous commitments made to the American Indian by the United Presbyterian Church...which have not been honored."

It recommended continued full participation by the Indian consulting panel in United Presbyterian funding and programs.

Florida's Sugar Industry Has Record Harvest

CLEWISTON, Fla. (AP) — Florida's sugar industry is ending its 1972-73 season with a record harvest of almost 10 million tons of cane and the longest season in history, the Florida Sugar Cane League reported Tuesday.

Talisman Sugar Corp. will be the last of the seven companies to close its mill for the season when it ceases operations Wednesday, said Bill Hunter, public information director for the league.

The industry credited "ideal weather with increased acreage in production" for the higher harvest. Talisman's grinding operations continued 220 days, the longest season ever. Prior to that, the longest was 203 days in 1942-43.

Florida's sugar industry, centered south of Lake Okeechobee, produces about 7 percent of the nation's sugar, the league said.

No. 2 Man In U.S. Delegation Flies From Paris For Saigon

PARIS (AP) — The No. 2 man on the U.S. delegation to the Paris talks on Vietnam cease-fire problems left for Saigon Tuesday night. His apparent mission was to consult with President Nguyen Van Thieu on a possible deal worked out between Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

A spokesman for the U.S. delegation said only that the envoy, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State William Sullivan, "is going to Saigon," but previous deals made in Paris on Vietnam have been cleared with Thieu.

Kissinger was to continue his talks with Tho on Wednesday, according to the spokesman, John Trattner.

Tho's deputy, Nguyen Co Thach, told newsmen of Sullivan's trip earlier Tuesday at the end of a six-hour meeting between Tho and the U.S. presidential adviser.

"Mr. Sullivan is going to Saigon," Thach said. Asked by newsmen to confirm his statement, Thach said: "No, no. I only know that he is leaving tonight."

Tuesday's meeting was the fifth and longest of the current sessions between Kissinger and Tho. They were believed to be drafting an agreed interpretation of the Jan. 27 cease-fire agreement.

There was speculation that any draft worked out with the North Vietnamese would be submitted to President Nixon for approval before the talks end.

Both sides maintained a news blackout. Nothing has emerged from the 25 hours of secret

SHARING CAN BE FUN!

One way we can help each other fight the high cost of living is to share favorite low-cost main dish recipes or other money saving ideas. If you would like to share a favorite, please send it to me along with your name and address for consideration. We will print as many as possible in my weekly column.

Please follow these steps in sending your recipes: Please print or type. List all ingredients first, followed by complete directions. Accuracy is important as testing cannot be done on all these recipes. Be sure to state can and/or package sizes. List approximate costs and number of servings possible from the dish.

I am looking forward to hearing from many of you real soon with your favorite recipes and ideas.

BUDGET STRETCHER: Use the syrup from canned fruits as a replacement for part of the liquid required in gelatin salads and desserts; or, thicken with cornstarch and use as a meat glaze or ice cream and dessert topping.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road condition, under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward and conceivably misleading to our customers to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicator during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will, upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase, replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wear Allowance
42,000 miles	Pro-rated on
40,000 miles	Miles Driven
45 month	$13.00
39 month	10.00

33 month	6.00
30 month	5.00
24 month	4.00
18 month	3.00

Police Seek Man In Station Holdup

Approximately $270 in cash was taken in a holdup of the Vickers service station at 30th and O Tuesday night, according to police Capt. Lowell Sellmeyer.

Sellmeyer said station attendant Tom Cowan, of 1030 Norwood, was in the process of putting the money from the cash register into the safe when a man wearing a nylon stocking over his head came into the station and demanded the money.

Sellmeyer said the man was carrying a large caliber automatic pistol and ordered the attendant to put the money in a small grocery sack. Cowan told The Star that in his nervousness he dropped a dime on the floor and after the gunman had fled with all the money, he used that dime to call the police.

A neighbor who lives south of the station on 30th told police he saw a man matching the description of the robber park his car in a driveway and walk toward the station.

The man is described as a black male, 18 to 25, weighing 140 to 160 pounds, five feet six inches to five feet nine inches tall, wearing a light colored shirt and blue jeans.

Woman Files Injury Suit Against Co-Op

A $525,000 suit was filed Tuesday in Lancaster District Court by Vivian G. Hornby in connection with a car-truck accident at 17th and Prairie Home Rd.

In her action against Farmer's Cooperative Co. and Raymond L. Rogers, driver of the Co-Op's truck, Mrs. Hornby alleges that on Oct. 19, 1970, her vehicle was struck by the Co-Op vehicle and as a result she suffered a fractured leg, foot, ankle as well as multiple cuts and bruises.

She alleges negligence on the part of the defendant (Rogers) in that he was travelling at excessive speed, failed to stop or slacken his speed at the intersection where the mishap occurred, failed to yield the right-of-way, failed to maintain proper control of his vehicle or proper lookout and failed to apply his brakes to avoid the collision.

As a result of the alleged injuries, Mrs. Hornby contends she was hospitalized for six months and disabled for employment.

Goals, Policies Meeting Slated

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced Tuesday that a public meeting of the Goals and Policies Committee will be held at 7:30 p.m. May 29 in the County-City Building cafeteria.

The committee will discuss population and land-use forecasts for the year 2000 and will discuss redevelopment of the transportation plan.

Schwartzkopf said the meeting will be the first basic step toward revision of the Comprehensive Plan. The committee will be asked to evaluate the projections which portray the future size and shape of the city. That must be done, the mayor said, before work can begin on the various functional elements of both the comprehensive and transportation plans.

He urged citizens to attend.

NO BASKET NECESSARY . . . backpacks are functional for bikers.

Toting—And Eyeballing

The idea's as old as the mailman, based on the notion that the back is stronger than the arm — when used in conjunction with the head.

Scurrying or sauntering, lolling or toting, the backpackers are everywhere in Lincoln.

Gone are the days of the briefcase or the armful of loose books on campus (No allowing for hand-holding or cycling there, in spring's surprise . . .)

Robert S. S. Baden-Powell probably didn't anticipate the strapping following of canvas today when he founded the Boy Scouts. Packs with the BSA seal are as prevalent as game bags, home-mades and the new-fangled ready-mades, designed for back-strapping or shoulder-slinging.

The bags solving the tote problem come multi-colored and drab, flat and thick, ringed and plain, long and short. All that somehow defies their owners. Little girls heft giant packs, big men easily bear mini-packs.

For the weak, the indisposed and the cyclist, backpacks are just plain functional.

But the mystique remains. What's inside them? Rather than intrude on that bit of privacy, the intrigue about the various contents will have to remain, only the shapes suggesting books or apples, bundled-up raincoats or tomorrow's socks.

TIRED MOTHER . . . eases in some winks to the fountain's shush.

College Degree A Requirement

Omaha—The Nebraska State Racing Commission doesn't include a college degree among its list of requirements a thoroughbred trainer must meet before obtaining a license.

But in the case of Larry (Butch) Starosick, if he didn't have a college sheepskin, he wouldn't be sending Larry Leroy to the post in Thursday's $10,000-added Good Neighbor Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Larry Leroy, winner of four of five starts this year, including the $10,000 Inaugural Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben, is the top thoroughbred in the Starosick-trained public stable of 21 thoroughbreds.

But if Starosick hadn't obtained a Pharmacy Degree from the University of Nebraska in 1965, he wouldn't be at Ak-Sar-Ben or any other race track—not as a trainer, at least.

"My father didn't mind me training horses in the summer as long as I was going to college the rest of the year," Starosick explains. "But he wouldn't have let me train if I didn't go to school."

He got his start in the training of race horses by working with his grandfather, Robert Stlinger.

Two Top 2-Year-Olds

In addition to Larry Leroy, Starosick has in his stable Great Commander and two top 2-year-olds, King Ody and Cowboy Cascio.

The Cascio stable of Omaha is his best account with seven horses.

The Columbus native started training on his own in 1966 with a stable of seven, including four for Bill Wiggins of Columbus and two of his own, Prince Kern and Belinda's King.

Starosick is one Nebraska native with no thoughts of leaving Nebraska.

He doesn't dream at nights of saddling horses in more glamorous areas such as Florida, California, Maryland or New York.

He stays with the Nebraska circuit from Grand Island's Fonner Park through the Atokad meeting at South Sioux City.

Owners Want To Watch

"The people I train for like to watch their horses run," the 29-year-old graduate of Columbus St. Bonaventure explains.

"And as long as I'm training for them and they want to see their horses run, I'm content to stay in Nebraska."

Since obtaining his degree, Starosick has practiced pharmacy a sum total of two weeks at an Omaha hospital, but the lure of the backstretch brought him back to the race track.

"I may use the degree some day," he points out, "if the racing business starts going bad for me, if I can't come up with the good horses."

"But it all depends on how things go at the track. What I learned in Pharmacy College has been helpful in training from a medication standpoint."

It also has been helpful from another standpoint—it got his father to let him hang around the barns as a youngster.

Alternate Car Ousted From Indianapolis 500

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)

— The U.S. Auto Club Tuesday disqualified the first alternate car for next Monday's Indianapolis 500-mile auto race and fined the Champ Carr racing team $1,000 for "attempting to misrepresent" the car as another racer.

The USAC acted on the recommendation of Harlan Fenger, chief steward at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Dick King, USAC's director of competition, said the Champ Carr team also must post a $5,000 cash bond to be held through the 1973 championship season. King said the bond would be returned "if there is no further attempt at misrepresentation."

Jack McCormack, the chief mechanic for the team, was fined $250 and placed on probation for one year.

A car driven by Tom Bigelow was elevated to the first alternate spot and will make the race if one of the 33 fastest qualified cars fails to start. A car driven by Jim Hurtubise is now the second alternate.

King said he was assessing the penalties "against Champ Carr racing enterprises for attempting to misrepresent Car No. 34 as Car No. 31 by transferring serial numbers and decals."

The car, a Norris-Eagle, was qualified by Sam Posey but later was bumped to the first alternate spot by a faster auto.

Fenger sent letters to officials of the Carr firm imposing a $100 fine and recommended to Richard King, director of competition for USAC, that No. 34 be denied the right to compete.

Fenger suggested to King that he impose "further penalties ... which under the circumstances may in his opinion be just and proper."

USAC officials previously had said somebody in the Champ Carr organization switched serial numbers, pretending that No. 34 was really No. 31, a number assigned to a car which arrived at the track only last Wednesday and would have had to be assembled before it could try for a qualification.

Officials said Champ Carr personnel apparently believed No. 34, qualified by Posey, would be "bumped" anyway, as it eventually was.

Other activity at the Speedway consisted of drivers and crews getting ready for carburetion tests Thursday, the final dress rehearsal before Monday's annual Memorial Day classic.

Prothro, Rams Settle Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tommy Prothro, who was fired as head coach of the Los Angeles Rams, and club owner Carroll Rosenbloom reached an out-of-court settlement of Prothro's $1.9-million breach of contract suit Tuesday.

Prothro and Rosenbloom "have resolved their differences, and both parties agreed that settlement figures would not be disclosed," a club spokesman said. "They talked two or three times in the last month and today came to a meeting of the minds."

Prothro, fired Jan. 24 after two seasons of a five-year contract with the National Football League team, filed the suit March 6 in Superior Court.

Rocket catcher Scott Votava tripped to deep center field with one out and scored after three consecutive walks issued by Rummel starter Guy Oberg and reliever McMillan.

The Rockets added an insurance run on the next play when Jeff Obrecht popped high to first base. He was ruled out on the infield fly rule, but not before pinch runner Bill Hill had scored from third base.

"We were a little scared in the early going," acknowledged Northeast coach Stubby Seng. The Rockets missed what would have been an easy run in the second inning, but Doug Pillard did not touch third base after Greg Smith singled him home.

Dean's Appearance Causes Nostalgia

NEW YORK (AP) — Dizzy Dean whipped up a lot of nostalgia during his guest appearance for the season's first nationally-televised Monday night baseball game, but Howard Cosell is expected to stir up controversy when he takes his turn in the NBC broadcast booth June 25.

Dean, who moved about 500 far-flung fans to telephone or send him telegrams, inaugurated a series of 15 games studded with guest stars joining regular sportscasters Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek.

"The calls and telegrams started coming in during the second inning," said an NBC spokesman. "By the time the game ended, there must have been 400 or 500 of them, all favorable. Dizzy was visibly moved."

Will Howard Cosell, the caustic commentator from rival ABC, spoil baseball the way many irate fans think he has ruined pro football by rambling reminiscences while key plays are in the works?

"I think perhaps that baseball is a different kind of broadcast that lends itself to interruptions," said Chet Simmons, manager of NBC Sports. "The two games are completely different, and I think people just might enjoy him."

"He's outspoken and outspoken about anything you want him to be," said Cosell. "I look forward to working with Kurt Gowdy, and Bowie Kuhn, though I've been highly critical of the absence of change in baseball through the years. But I'm not going on there to tear baseball apart. I'll tell it like it is, and tell stories too."

"I'll adopt the same kind of format as I have for football. There will be an irreverent attitude, but Bowie is all in favor of this type of thing," he said of the commissioner of baseball.

Despite all the fan mail for Dizzy, pitcher for the old "Gas House Gang" in St. Louis, Monday night baseball is far from a whopping success.

NBC Research estimated that 30 million Americans, five million more than a year ago, watched the network's nationally-televised season opener, San Francisco's 9-4 victory over Houston in the Astrodome. But early returns on the ratings, which means the New York metropolitan area, indicated that only 17 per cent of the persons watching television were tuned in to the game. Thirty per cent generally is regarded as a cut-off for success or failure of a program.

Truth In Sportscasting Rare Commodity

(First of a Series)

By MIKE ROBERTS

(c) 1973 Washington Star-News

Washington — The truth is that truth in sportscasting is a very rare commodity.

While sports events are presented in the guise of news reporting, none of the rules of integrity applied to real news broadcasting are observed.

A wide survey by the Star-News shows that sports broadcasters, with few exceptions, view themselves as salesmen, whose prime function is to promote, not to inform.

The survey also makes it clear that the men in charge of sportscasting go about their business with no regard to the possibility that the content of their programs might be bound by federal regulations.

A question was put to the sports director of one of the three major networks: Which Federal Communications Commission regulations and which portions of the National Association of Broadcasters' code govern your announcers?

He responded with a blank stare. "Wow," he replied after a few moments of contemplation.

And what about the watchdog agency charged with protecting the public's interest in honest broadcasting? Its representative, too, responded in essence with a bemused "Wow."

"There are no specific regulations about sports broadcasting," said William Ray, chief of the F.C.C.'s complaints and compliance division. "The commission never adopted any rules."

Thus untrammelled by the need to fulfill specific legal requirements, sports broadcasters attend to the business at hand: selling the product.

The product, in this case, is something more than beer or automobiles or razor blades. The product is the game itself, and whenever the danger arises that the truth might diminish the listener's positive feelings toward the game, the truth is simply shunted aside.

In the name of salesmanship sportscasters subject their listeners to a steady diet of distortions, omissions, phony buildups and sometimes outright lies—in short, whatever is deemed necessary to move the product.

Shelby Whitfield's "Kiss It Goodbye," serialized in the Washington Star-News recently, illustrated how flagrant these practices can become.

"Learn to lie," Whitfield was bluntly told when he signed on as voice of the Washington Senators in 1969.

He learned, under owner Bob Short's rules, the weather and the forecast were always beautiful, on the theory that the promise of nice weather might lure people into the ballpark to watch a team which was not much of an attraction. It became a standing joke that "The sun always shines on RFK Stadium."

Whitfield learned to ignore "negative facts"—losing streaks, poor attendance, men left on base, the miserable batting average of the fellow at bat or the obvious shortcomings of the dull team coming to town next.

To encourage late arrivals, he learned to lie enthusiastically that people were still entering the park as late as the fourth inning "even if the trickle stopped at the National Anthem."

He learned to browbeat the people of Washington for Short's benefit, threatening that the club would move out of town, as it eventually did, if attendance didn't increase.

He learned to manipulate the popularity of a player when it suited Short's purposes, deliberately downgrading Frank Howard's performance when Short had decided to get rid of Howard.

Whitfield's experience isn't unique. On the contrary, it is fundamentally common to nearly every announcer who ever broadcast a team sport on a local station, a natural result of conditions under which broadcasters are hired and fired.

The team owners themselves have complete authority over selection of the announcers. In many cases they simply hire their broadcasters directly. But any time the owner of a major sports team relinquishes that right to an advertising agency or a radio or television station, he reserves the right to veto any announcer chosen.

Any illusion that might be created that the announcer's loyalty is to his audience is a sham. They serve at the pleasure of the club owner or they don't serve at all. Thus Vince Scully of the Los Angeles Dodgers, invariably cited as the most honest and professional of his peers, and Monte Moore, Charles Finley's unabashed on-the-air canonizer for 11 years, draw the same conclusion about their jobs: "I am a salesman."

Likewise, on network broadcasts, the ultimate decision on who will report rests with the owners. In their contracts with professional leagues, N.B.C. and C.B.S. grant the respective commissioners the right to disapprove of any announcers the networks might choose. Rooney Arledge, president of A.B.C. Sports, says his network hasn't agreed to any such clause in the last two years.

A.B.C. recently lost its contract with the National Basketball Association to C.B.S., which agreed to a clause giving the N.B.A. announcer-approval rights.

One might think the F.C.C. would be aware of these cozy arrangements, but the reaction of commissioner Nicholas Johnson reveals the obscurity of such matters within the agency that guards the nation's airways.

Johnson is the maverick of the commission, the conspirator member who is frequently heard from when the public is getting the short end of the stick. His jaw dropped and his eyes bugged out when he was told that National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle determines who may broadcast a pro football game.

In Johnson's view, "The Commission is interested in assuring that people not be misled here. Clearly a sports reporter is not assumed to be an employee of the club. He's not supposed to be like an Ed McMahon. There's a presumption that the sports announcer is your representative—you, the viewer—and that he represents your interests, not those of the club."

Sen. Warren Magnusen concurred. "Well that shouldn't be done," he said. "I think if the public finds out about this they'll be upset."

Lest the public become too concerned, however, Tom Dawson has some words of reassurance. Dawson handles broadcasting matters for baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and he is of the soothing opinion that announcers, owners' hirelings though they be, remain their own men on the air.

Confronted with questions of integrity, Dawson recoiled at first, saying, "I don't think I want to talk to you."

Then he rallied with the assertion that "Even though we have the reasonable right of approval we put no pressure on the announcers whatsoever. We're interested in having the game done as well and as professionally as it can be done. It's done similarly to news."

"If there was any distortion we'd clamp down on it so fast ... But you know something—there isn't. The broadcaster is his own man, believe me, they are. I don't know any way you could get them to shill. I think they're fiercely proud of the fact that they are reporters. I don't think—I know—they're proud of their integrity."

Monte Moore, voice of the Oakland A's on his fierce pride as a reporter: "I'm not one of those who think you have to be critical. I don't consider anything wrong about that. What the heck ... The stations pay a lot of money for the games. Radio and TV stations are a lot more in bed with baseball and football teams than newspapers. They want the clubs to look good themselves. It's easy to understand. I never talked to a broadcaster who didn't get some pressure from the owner."

Webb Found Guilty, Fined

By Associated Press
Karl Webb, football and track standout at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been fined $150 and assessed court costs of $14 for possession of marijuana.

A six-member Lancaster County Court jury took less than two hours Monday to return a guilty verdict following a trial, which began last Thursday but was recessed Friday to allow Webb to compete in the Big Eight track meet in Manhattan, Kan.

Webb, 21, was charged after police visited his Lincoln apartment last Nov. 28 and reported finding an unsmoked marijuana cigarette under a couch, and other traces of the substance.

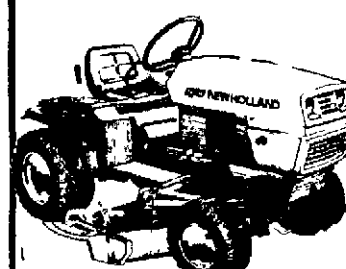

In the same connection, the other Nebraska football players, Bill Olds, 21, and Ralph Powell, 21, were charged with visiting a place where a controlled substance was being used. A jury was being chosen this week to hear their trials.

Next Indy 500 Set For Sunday

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 58th annual Indianapolis 500-mile race next year has been scheduled for Sunday, May 28.

The date was announced Tuesday by Indianapolis Motor Speedway officials, who said, "The Sunday date will give most visitors added travel time before and after the event and also provide an acceptable 'rain date' on Memorial Day in case of inclement weather."

Kick Returner Smith Traded By Bears

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ron Smith, the National Football League's kickoff return leader in 1972, was traded to the San Diego Chargers by the Chicago Bears Tuesday for an undisclosed draft choice next year.

Smith led the league in kickoff returns with 30 for 924 yards and a 30.8 average last season, earning three NFL career records—for most kickoff returns with 220, most kickoff return yards with 5,555.

Confidence Vote Eyed By Terry

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (AP)—State Sen. Terry Carpenter promised Tuesday he will ask members of the legislature if they are afraid of him and if he is a detriment to the body.

Carpenter said that if he stand, a majority, he will resign "and come back to Scottsbluff."

Carpenter was responding to a statement made by Gov. J. J. Egan Monday who accused other senators of being afraid of Carpenter.

Their latest exchange stems from a Carpenter-sponsored bill that would have authorized the University of Nebraska to take over certain facilities and land that was owned by defunct Hiram Scott College. Egan vetoed the bill and the legislature was unable to override the veto.

Carpenter said the governor "never called me in to discuss the bill at anytime. He only called me in after he vetoed."

Carpenter also defended his bill that would equalize the cost of transporting liquor in the state to licensees. At present the cost is less expensive to Omaha area dealers because most of the distributors are in Omaha.

Carpenter said Omaha dealers have an advantage. Carpenter, who owns an establishment that sells liquor in Terrytown, said it was not his own interest that prompted him to introduce the bill.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
AXYDIBAAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
